

'Phantom General' Who Cracked Maginot Reported Crushed

Panzer Forces Are Decimated, Russians Say

Great Nazi Technician Said Heavy Loser in Mammoth Battle.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Red army troops have smashed the German panzer forces of Colonel General Heinz Guderian, the "phantom general" of the French campaign, in a mammoth battle near Bryansk, 230 miles from Moscow, the Russians reported early today.

This was the latest big success contained in Soviet communiques detailing great operations on a curving central front extending from Yartsevo, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk, down past Yelnya to the Bryansk sector.

Two-Thirds of Men Lost.
The big-fisted 53-year-old General Guderian who drove his panzer units in a lightning enveloping thrust behind the French Maginot line in the summer of 1940 "lost two-thirds of his effectives" when he collided with hard-hitting Red tanks, the Soviet communique said.

The Russian communique said these were Guderian's losses: 20,000 men dead, wounded and prisoners, 500 tanks, 70 armored cars, 1,525 trucks, 195 planes, 85 heavy machineguns, 51 trench mortars and several thousand rifles and large quantities of ammunition.

The German General Guderian is rated as a great technician and Berlin said recently that he was using successfully a new tactic of mounting artillery pieces on tanks on the central front.

Guderian was attached to the general staff in the World War, was the first man to step across the Austrian border when the Anschluss was ordered and was awarded for his exploits in Poland, Holland and France.

Mystery of Maas.

There is still some mystery as to just how Guderian got his heavy German tanks across the Maas river in less than 12 hours in his drive into the Low Countries in May, 1940.

The Germans say he enters the thick of the battles himself and directs the charges of his panzer units by radio.

The German claim of having destroyed three Soviet armies in the Lake Ilnen district south of Leningrad brought a quick answer from Moscow. The Russian communique said the Red army lost 30,000 killed and wounded there in a month of fighting, but added that the Germans lost from 35,000 to 50,000.

At Yartsevo on the northern end of the central front the Germans were said to have lost 10,000 killed and wounded, 100 field guns and 100 mine-throwers, to Russians commanded by Marshal Semenov Timoshenko in a thrust believed planned to relieve pressure on Leningrad.

Southern Drive Continues.

The Germans, making no mention of this theater on the Moscow approaches, were principally upon the fighting about Leningrad and reported also that the thrust of their southern armies eastward from the lower Dnieper river toward the Donets Valley, the Crimea and ultimately the industrial basin of the river Don was proceeding with strong aerial support.

While the German public was asked again to have patience pending more news, it was in effect admitted that the Leningrad inner defenses were still effective, although gradual German gains forced at great cost were reported. It was acknowledged, too, that Soviet artillery was effective, the explanation being offered that the Russians had had time to accurately measure their ranges.

For the first time, Berlin reported that German big guns were firing freely into Leningrad, not merely searching out military objectives as had been previously claimed.

On the Leningrad front, Russian military dispatches of yesterday claimed that Soviet troops had captured a strategic crossroads village at which the Germans were concentrated heavily.

Welfare Unit Slated To Refuse Director Dickson's Resignation

The Fulton County Board of Public Welfare, in its session at 2 o'clock today, is expected, according to authoritative sources, to stand firm in its differences with Frank V. Lanham, district supervisor of the Federal Surplus Marketing Administration, by declining the proffered resignation of its director, T. C. Dickson, and insisting upon its election, two weeks ago, of its auditor, Thomas L. Gullickson, to the post of food stamp issuing officer.

Dickson submitted his resignation at the board's meeting last Thursday, saying there had been unwarranted interference with him in the performance of his duties.

This was interpreted in part to mean Lanham's refusal to confirm appointment first of George Yancey, former Junior Chamber

American Navy Is Convoying in Atlantic, Seeking Raider in Pacific, Knox Reveals; Legion Calls for Repeal of Neutrality Act

SHIPS OF MANY NATIONS—New York harbor was jammed yesterday by a great merchant flotilla. A procession of 104 vessels of British, Dutch, Norwegian and other registry arrived within 36 hours, from Sunday midnight to noon yesterday. This impressive group was photographed in the Narrows, entrance to the harbor, looking from Staten Island toward Bay Ridge, Brooklyn.

FBI-Appointed Chief Proposed by Mayor

Move Suggested To End Dispute Over Operation of Police Department.

Appointment of a commissioner of public safety, named by the FBI and having full authority over administration of the police department, was proposed yesterday by Mayor LeCraw as a solution of the raging council row over administration of the department.

The mayor's suggestion, which he said has the unanimous approval of the police committee, will be offered at council's next meeting, and was made as proponents of an ordinance passed by council and vetoed by LeCraw began circulation of a referendum petition designed to force enactment of the measure to give Police Chief Hornsby exclusive control of the department.

Characterizing the police department "as the weakest spot in the city government," the mayor said in a statement addressed to the people of Atlanta "every honest person in Atlanta wants it put on an efficient, clean, non-political basis."

Under his plan, the FBI would be asked to nominate three outstanding operatives for the post, and the mayor and council would designate one of them to act for two years, after which the director of public safety would be retained permanently or the job would be abolished. The salary would range from $6,000 to $7,500 under a preliminary plan.

LeCraw said Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman; Alderman L. O. Mosely, vice chairman, and Councilmen George B. Lyle, Cecil Hester and Howard Haire, comprising the police committee, had agreed unanimously on the new proposal, saying they would resign their posts if necessary to make the plan effective.

"They told me all they want is efficient law enforcement," the mayor said.

A committee of citizens, headed by LeCraw said Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman; Alderman L. O. Mosely, vice chairman, and Councilmen George B. Lyle, Cecil Hester and Howard Haire, comprising the police committee, had agreed unanimously on the new proposal, saying they would resign their posts if necessary to make the plan effective.

The tactical effect of Dickson's resignation and its expected declaration by the board today, it was said, would be to force the issue and bring about clarification.

With an estimated $500,000 of purchases annually involved, it was pointed out, merchants of Atlanta and Fulton county are interested in smoothing the situation. The county supplies $50,000 as a revolving fund and nominates the issuing officer. All other duties in connection with the stamps are performed by WPA workers.

Dickson submitted his resignation at the board's meeting last Thursday, saying there had been unwarranted interference with him in the performance of his duties. This was interpreted in part to mean Lanham's refusal to confirm appointment first of George Yancey, former Junior Chamber

J. E. White Found by Kin In New Orleans

North Fulton Principal Weak After Daze of Amnesia Attack.

J. E. White, principal of North Fulton High school, who disappeared Friday, August 29, in a daze of amnesia brought on by overwork, found himself in New Orleans yesterday when he recognized his picture in a New Orleans newspaper.

He immediately contacted his brother-in-law, Hurd J. Crain, who was stopping in a New Orleans hotel while searching for the missing professor.

Crain phoned Atlanta newspapersmen that White could not clearly recall where he had been or what he had done since he dropped from sight and that he did not remember writing two incoherent letters last week to Mrs. White from New Orleans, causing Crain to go there looking for him.

A doctor, called to attend the professor, said he was clearly suffering from mental strain and ordered that the Atlanta educator not be questioned at length until he had regained strength. He prescribed rest and light feeding.

Crain said he and White would leave New Orleans for Atlanta today, if the professor seems able to stand the trip.

The brother-in-law was sitting in his hotel room when Professor White phoned him from the lobby yesterday afternoon. Crain asserted White told him he had not eaten since last Friday, when his money gave out, and that he did not remember who he was until he saw his picture in the paper.

White said he was just staring at the photo when it suddenly began to dawn on him that the features of the pictured man were his own. He read the accompanying news story and found that Crain was in the city at a certain hotel.

U. S. To Supply Reds 100 Million for Arms

10 Million Already Delivered; Money To Be Repaid With Minerals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(P)—Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones announced today he would provide $100,000,000 to Russia for the purchase of war materials in this country.

Jones told a press conference that, at the written request of President Roosevelt, the Defense Supplies Corporation had signed a contract for the amount with the Amtorg Trading Corporation, a Russian Purchasing Agency in this country.

It was explained that the transaction technically was not a loan but a contract for the American purchase of minerals from Russia under which Russia could get money before delivering the goods. Jones said that $10,000,000 already had been paid over to the Russians and $40,000,000 more cash would be delivered as soon as the Russians ask for it, probably in the next few weeks.

Whether more cash will be paid before goods are received, he said, has not been decided.

Jones made public a letter from President Roosevelt, saying that Russia was in need of dollar exchange to make purchases of war supplies in this country. At the same time, he added, the United States needs "many critical and strategic materials produced in Russia." Some of these, he said, were normally imported from that country.

Removal of Bounds On Troop Activities Urged at Milwaukee

Warship Escorts of Cargo Vessels One of Many Protective Methods, Secretary Declares.

BALBOA, C. Z., Sept. 17.—(INS)—United States naval officers today maintained silence on reports that an American naval vessel had sunk an Axis raider in the Pacific. Admiral Frank Sadler, Balboa commandant, said only: "I have no news to release today on the matter."

The United States appeared moving quickly yesterday to support in a stronger manner than words President Roosevelt's reiterated promise that this nation would maintain its historic policy of "freedom of the seas," as the Navy was revealed seeking a German surface raider believed to be operating in the Pacific.

Secretary of the Navy Knox asserted in Washington that the United States fleet was now using all methods, including the convoy, to make certain that lease-lend supplies get safely to Britain, while in Milwaukee the national convention of the American Legion recommended that the United States neutrality act be repealed and that present geographical limitations on the use of American troops be removed so they could go into action anywhere American defense might require.

Legion Gives 'Aye' Chorus

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 17.—(P)—The American Legion national convention, by voice vote, today endorsed the foreign policy of the President and congress and urged immediate repeal of the neutrality act and removal of all geographical limitations on movement of United States troops.

The delegates swept aside a minority report which sought to forbid the national administration from giving lend-lease aid to Soviet Russia. A roll call vote—first of the convention—showed a count of 874 to 604 in favor of tabling the report.

The defeated minority report of the foreign relations committee resolved: "That the American Legion reiterate its oft-stated position on Communism and definitely go on record as opposing aid to

U. S. Employs 'All Methods'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(P)—Secretary Knox revealed today that the American Navy was convoying British-bound cargoes on the north Atlantic and, in addition, had been searching for a German surface raider believed to be operating on the Pacific.

But, he added, escorting groups of merchant ships was only one of many methods that were in use. Since the World War, he said, many ways of protecting shipping on the high seas had been perfected and the Navy was "employing them all."

The cabinet officer made it clear that the administration had capped the long smoldering congressional debate for and against convoys by simply ordering them into service.

Three Swedish Ships Sunk by Mystery Blast

Modern Destroyers Exploded in Anchorage South of Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, Spt. 17.—(P)—Three of Sweden's best modern destroyers exploded and sank today in a series of mysterious blasts in Harsfjaerden, a fjord south of Stockholm long used as a naval proving ground and anchorage.

(DNB, official German news agency, said a troop transport also burned and sank and a mine-layer, the Klas Fleming, was damaged severely when her cargo of mines blew up. Fire spread to nearby Maersgarns Island, where ammunition dumps are located, it said.)

The destroyers lost were the Goteborg, a sleek, 1,040-ton vessel built in 1935; and the Klas Horn and Klas Uggla, sister ships of 1,020 tons each, built in 1932. Normal complements of the three would number 380 men.

Verified casualties were 31 killed and 11 injured, but the toll was believed to be higher. Flaming oil which spread over the sea prevented a thorough check.

(The Swedish-American News Exchange in New York received a Stockholm dispatch saying a boiler aboard the Goteborg exploded, indicating that this touched off the other blasts.)

(DNB, which also carried this report, said another account blamed a torpedo explosion on the Goteborg. The German agency said the explosions shook Maersgarns Island so severely that soldiers there took refuge in air raid shelters.)

RUSSIAN LOUD-SPEAKER—A Red army artillery piece is shown in action here, according to Moscow. Big guns are playing a prominent part on the Russian-German front and the Nazis complained yesterday their assault upon Leningrad was hindered by the fact long Soviet preparations enabled the defenders to measure accurately all gun ranges for artillery bombardment.

Milk Price Raised Cent Per Quart Despite Protests

By LUKE GREENE.

Over the heated protests of Atlanta consumers, the State Milk Control Board yesterday authorized a 1-cent-per-quart increase in the price of milk to go into effect October 1, but tactfully directed that the increase not apply to charitable institutions which are now getting their milk for 11 cents.

One-cent raises also were approved for five other Georgia milk sheds—Valdosta, Waycross, Moultrie, Dalton and Thomasville. Director Charles G. Duncan said the action of the board was unanimous.

The board members took their action after sitting in a hearing Tuesday afternoon and listening to consumers charge that the milk hikes were intended to help the "inefficient milk people" rather than the consumer, while the dairymen argued they ought to have an additional 2 cents per quart to offset rising costs of production.

Formality Insinuated. During the hearing the board members objected to the insinuation that the board's decision already had been determined weeks ago and that the hearings constituted a mere formality. Director Duncan said the board did not act on a demand from Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder that it pay the farmers more for their milk or risk the possibility of having milk imported into Georgia from other states. It was pointed out that the apparent reason for dumping this potato back into Linder's lap is that the State Milk Control Board already considers it is carrying the ball with an open field ahead. Duncan explained that before anyone outside the state can bring milk into Georgia, he must first get a permit from the Milk Control Board before he can sell it to anybody except ice cream plants.

Farmer Promised Share. Duncan said that of the 4-cent-per-gallon increase, the farmer will get 2 1/2 cents and the distributor 1 1/2 cents. The milk director said it was Linder's responsibility to decide whether he would grant permits for the importation of milk from Tennessee and other states and not the milk board's.

Duncan said the board discussed Linder's demand that it follow the law in giving the farmers their share, but went no further. Duncan added: "They felt that Linder put them on the spot. We have been following the law insofar as we and the attorney general interpret it."

No statement came from the board as to the reasons for authorizing the increase, but Duncan said that "acting on the evidence, the board felt the dairymen were entitled to a one-cent increase."

Composed of Dairymen. At the same time he pointed out that all of the board members except two had been or were in the milk business, some of them with as high as 30 years' experience, and knew the dairymen's problems.

The board is composed of Mrs. Henry P. Russell, of Thomasville, producer-distributor; W. C. Benton, of Mansfield, wholesale shipper; A. A. Denham, of Eatonton, wholesale shipper; E. B. King, of Columbus, stores; J. Schley Thompson, of Atlanta, consumer; C. C. Tuggle, of Atlanta, producer-distributor; and George A. Sankens, of Augusta, distributor.

Soon after the meeting adjourned, Director Duncan went to the Governor's office where he called his office and ordered that a telegram be sent to J. C. Parks, of the Eatonton Co-operative Creamery, notifying him of the board's action.

Knight Conviction Affirmed by Court

The conviction of John Knight on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in the slaying of Andrew Weinman at Cartersville, October 25, 1940, was affirmed yesterday by the Georgia court of appeals.

The judges ruled that the evidence supported the verdict that Knight shot and killed Weinman after an argument over mining operations.

Knight was sentenced to from four to six years' imprisonment.

Immigration Office Transferred to Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—W. W. Eyster, supervisor of the Sixth Immigration District, said today his headquarters would be moved from Jacksonville to Miami within 30 days.

The city commission formally tendered a waterfront site for a $350,000 building.

Eyster said the Department of Justice deemed the transfer as necessary to national defense. The district embraces Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama.

EQUATORIAL ACROBATS COMING—A troupe of acrobats, the "Argentinian Troupe," has been booked as part of the Gun Sun free grandstand show that will be offered twice daily at the Southeastern World's Fair, opening at Lakewood Park September 26, President Mike Benton announces. The above troupe does rollicking comedy acts abetted by the "Gloria Sisters" in Pan-American rhythm routines.

State Sues Bank for $1,200

Attorney General Ellis Arnall yesterday brought suit in Fulton superior court to recover for the state $1,200, alleged to have been paid on forged signatures of the late Mrs. Mary Terrell, of Decatur, widow of a Confederate veteran, Henry C. Terrell, to pension checks.

The defendant was the First National Bank of Atlanta, which was charged with negligence in the suit for not discovering the forgeries. Mrs. Terrell's son-in-law, Dr. Claude C. Brooks, of Bremen, convicted of forgery charges, now is serving a sentence of from two to five years in Tullahoma prison.

The attorney general, regarded as a candidate for Governor in the next primary, brought the proceeding in the name of the present Governor, his presumptive rival.

11 Acts Signed In Grandstand Show at Fair

Two Free Performances Daily To Be Feature at Lakewood Park.

The Southeastern World's Fair, opening September 26 at Lakewood Park, will offer two free grandstand shows daily with a spectacular array of stars, President Mike Benton announced yesterday.

Eleven acts of thrill features of world-famous artists compose this "Cavalcade of Stars" that will include Carmita, Silvers Johnson & Company, the Three Incominics and many others.

Carmita, Brazilian siren, performs her daring acts on a high, swaying pole as thin as a fisherman's rod, hundreds of feet above the ground, and other trapeze artists include Don Bernado, Los Gitanos, Los Angelinos and the Merrill Brothers and Sister.

Immediately after the night performance of the grandstand show, a dazzling display of fireworks will light the sky for miles around the park, Benton declares.

A unique fireworks miracle to be performed nightly will be the presentations of portraits and state emblems that will include a portrait of President Roosevelt, of each southeastern Governor, of Mayor Roy McCraw and others.

Both the grandstand show and the fireworks are free. The grandstand show will be performed each afternoon at 2:45 o'clock and at 7:45 o'clock at night.

Great RAF Raid Made on France

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—More than 300 British fighters escorted bomber squadrons over northern France today to bomb the power plant at Bethune, authorized sources said tonight.

The air ministry said many other fighter planes were engaged over France at the same time. At least seven German Messerschmitt 109s were reported destroyed.

The fighters and bombers, flying in layer-cake formation, made up one of the strongest air fleets the British have sent over the continent since the aerial offensive started in June. Watchers on the Kent coast said the roar of passing planes was continuous.

U. S. Pilot Lands Flaming Plane

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Lieutenant James Robinson, of Narragansett, R. I., was taking part in the Army war maneuvers today when the engine in his fighter plane exploded at 3,500 feet.

He chose not to use his parachute and maneuvered the blazing craft to a safe landing where ground crews extinguished the flames. He was unhurt.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 17.—Thomas M. Fowler was elected president of the Community Chest at the annual meeting held today. H. L. Williams was named vice president; H. P. Mullin, treasurer, and Miss Myrtle Layfield, secretary. The annual campaign will be held November 3-10.

Parachute Troops Add Modern Touch to Louisiana War Games

127 Men Drop From Sky Into Cotton Patch

17 Minutes Required for Landing in Surprise Attack.

By RICE YAHNER.

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The United States Army today used its new parachute troops for the first time as it would in war by dropping 127 men into a Louisiana cotton patch and immediately making this a vital point of 30,000 square miles where the Second and Third Armies are opposing each other in the nation's greatest training exercises in history.

The landing carried out against a clear blue sky about 50 miles northwest of Alexandria was the result of months of training of American troops to execute destructive missions like those that harried armies in Europe in invasion of the low countries and Crete.

General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff and other high ranking officers saw the fighting men and their equipment billow from 13 fighter-protected transport planes within 17 minutes. It was a complete surprise attack.

Quick Scene Change. One moment the field just north of the Red river, near the hamlet of Clarence, was an undeviating rural scene, and the next Negro cotton pickers scattered wildly in all directions as the vari-colored parachutes, loaded with fighting equipment, billowed from the first of the planes. A total of 119 enlisted men and eight officers of Company A, 502d Parachute Battalion, Fort Benning, Ga., quickly followed without mishap. One equipment-loaded parachute failed to open.

Two broken arms were reported suffered in landings in the rugged countryside. Disregarding an aerial dogfight in progress between Second and Third Army pursuit planes, two-thirds of the parachute troops grabbed their rifles, mortars, machineguns, ammunition, and demolition bombs and scurried to destroy an important pontoon bridge that Second Army had thrown across the Red river, and to attack a trunk highway, lifeline of the modern wheeled army.

The Third Army was pressing up from the southwest at the time and the main force of the Second Army, numerically smaller but with more mechanized equipment, was backing up against the river, which it crossed Monday when the games involving 500,000 troops opened.

Communications Cut. The remainder of the parachute troops went up and down the highway, cutting military telephone and telegraph lines and capturing parts of a signal battalion and combat engineers and other Second Army units traveling along the road paralleling the wide front.

The grinning parachutists that were captured had food as well as arms strapped to their flying suits. They refused their captors any information whatever.

"Don't you birds even know what you were sent here to do?" one disgusted lieutenant said.

"It takes dumb men to make up this outfit," a parachute prisoner wisecracked. Jumping from 1,200 feet, the first man cleared his plane one minute and 20 seconds after the flight of 13 planes was sighted. In 11 seconds he was on the field. A tripping device automatically opens the chute when a soldier jumps.

Surprise Attack. The only warning the Second Army troops, who had not noticed the plane markings, had of the attack was when a smoke bomb dropped onto the field to mark it for following planes.

The 502d Parachute Battalion is the second the Army formed for training. There are four companies in such battalions and the whereabouts of the three others was a major source of concern to Army commanders in the war games. Lieutenant General Ben Lear, of the Second, and Lieutenant General Walter Krueger, of the Third.

The parachutists are under the direct control of Lieutenant General Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff of Army General Headquarters, and director of the maneuvers.

Elsewhere on the 150-mile battlefield, the Second and Third armies traded bombing blows today. Powerful antitank forces massed behind the Third Army are ready to try to stop the Second Army's two armored divisions, the exact whereabouts of one apparently still being unknown. The tank attack is expected to be the Second Army's final thrust of the week of battle.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right

If you have to get up 2 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic kidney and bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, aches or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic kidney and bladder trouble, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such prompt, happy relief to so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless complete satisfaction to you. Cystex costs only 35¢ at drug stores and the guarantee protects you.

Hubby in Doghouse as Calves Force Him Into Chicken Coop

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Adolph Jozalis, father of 11 children, didn't mind it so much when he had to live in the barn with the cows for two weeks while his mother-in-law was visiting the family.

But, he told Judge Rudolph Desort today, the recent birth of two calves so crowded the quarters that he would have to move into the chicken coop.

Jozalis was in superior court on his wife's complaint that he was two weeks behind in temporary support payments arranged pending a hearing on her separate maintenance suit.

When he promised to make up the arrearage, the jurist ordered him to return to his house.

Secret Film Shows Activity Of Spy Suspect

Federal Jury Sees FBI Movie Revealing Fred-eric Duquesne.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A film, shot secretly by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and thrown on a screen in federal court today, showed Frederick Duquesne, 63, one of 16 defendants charged with espionage conspiracy, going over pictures of planes, guns, tanks and copious notes and diagrams.

Government witnesses—FBI Agent William Friedman, who made the picture from an adjoining office, and Counter Espionage Agent William Sebald—testified that the silent film recorded Duquesne explaining American war secrets which he had stolen for Germany and discussing several sabotage projects, including the blowing up of the Schenectady (N. Y.) General Electric plant and the scattering of minute incendiary bombs on wharves.

The picture, which Friedman said was recorded in fast motion to obtain better lighting, showed Duquesne with Sebald in the latter's office. Much of the time he spoke so animatedly with his hands that sound effects were unnecessary to indicate his speech.

Friedman's testimony before the showing served as subtitles. "Duquesne advised Sebald to be very careful about carrying materials on his person," testified Friedman. "He said that personally he carried things on his leg."

Duquesne exhibited drawings of a gun and baby tank for transportation in an airplane—the airplane had not yet been designed—and a large tank with deflector plates, said Friedman.

MEDAL FOR HINES—W. M. (Pop) Hines (left), city editor of The Constitution, yesterday was awarded the gold medal of the Quartermaster Association—the first time in the 20-year history of the organization that a civilian was so honored. The medal was presented by Brigadier General James L. Frink (right), Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster, at ceremonies in the general's office.

Quartermaster Service Medal Awarded Hines

Splendid Work Is Cited in Presentation by General Frink.

By LEE FUHRMAN.
When a press agent gets a medal—instead of the usual kick in the pants—it's news.
That's what happened here yesterday when Brigadier General James L. Frink, Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster, presented a gold medal of the Quartermaster Association to W. M. (Pop) Hines, city editor of The Constitution, now on leave of absence, for "splendid work in bringing before the public the manifold activities of the Quartermaster Corps."

It was the first time the Quartermaster Association, comprised of Quartermaster Corps officers of the nation and organized in 1921, had honored a civilian with the medal. There is double distinction in that the civilian honored is a newspaperman.

In presenting the medal, which bears the insignia of the Quartermaster Corps, General Frink read a letter addressed to Hines from Brigadier General R. H. Jordan, Secretary of the Quartermaster Review, official publication of the association.
"I am directed by our executive committee to transmit herewith the Quartermaster Association medal as a token of our appreciation of your efforts in behalf of our great national defense effort."

Previously, a congratulatory letter had been received from Colonel R. A. Osmun, director of public relations in the office of the Quartermaster General in Washington. Commented members of the news staff of The Constitution in a congratulatory telegram: "So they pinned something on you at last. We know you deserve it."

The brief presentation ceremonies were held in General Frink's office in the Hurt building, and were attended by Army officers and representatives of the Associated Press and Atlanta newspapers. Among those present were Lieutenant Colonel Stacy Knopf, assistant chief of staff, G-2, Fourth Corps Area; Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution; William G. Key, news editor of The Constitution; Samuel H. Cox, telegraph editor of The Constitution, and Lee Fuhrman, night city editor of The Constitution.

Hines became associated with the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster Corps July 15, to organize and set up the corps area's public relations branch for the first time in the history of the corps area. He obtained a leave of absence from his duties at The Constitution to do this work.

Excessive Rains Halt Valdosta Area Planting
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—Continued and excessive rains for more than 10 days have caused a halt in fall planting throughout the Valdosta agricultural area. Important in the farm schedule at this time is planting turnips for shipment, hundreds of carloads being annually shipped from this section.

heard to order one of the office force to get the Governor on the telephone. This was done quickly in the privacy of the Governor's office, indicating he might be in Atlanta.

Still later when one of the newsmen got inquisitive, Mobley said he presumed the Governor was on his way from Eastman to Atlanta and would be here today, but that he didn't know where he was.

To the press and the great rank and file of Georgians he was simply "out of the city."

It was confusing as well as mysterious.

Lice-See-'Em at Lyceum?

Beware Pediculus Capitis

This, of course does not apply to you or to anybody you know, but the Georgia Department of Public Health in its latest bulletin points out that, now that school has opened, it might be well to check up on little Johnny to be sure he hasn't come home from school with a nice collection of pediculus capitis.

Pediculus capitis, it might be pointed out, is known in more common terms as the head louse, and he loves to go to school, where he leaps lightly from Johnny to Jimmy to Joe to Jean until he has a family happily situated in every home.

It is not a disgrace, the bulletin points out, to have lice. (Everything from whales to bees are attacked by the little parasites of various kinds.) But it is a disgrace to keep them.
"Parents of children that have become infected with head lice should never remain silent on the subject, nor should they cast undue criticism upon the school that the children attend," the bulletin warns. "In spite of utmost precautions on the part of school and health authorities, such cases will occur from time to time."

Parents whose suspicion that their pride and joy has become pediculous is confirmed by close inspection should take immediate steps, the bulletin recommends. First let the teacher know. Then sit little Johnny down and soak his thatch in a mixture of equal parts of kerosene and olive oil, or kerosene and vinegar. Then wrap his head in a towel for an hour or so, and after that, give him a thorough shampoo with hot water and soap. Then comb his hair with a fine tooth comb soaked in alcohol and tell him to quit swapping hats with the little boy who sits across the aisle from him at school.

Huge Potato Supply Bought For Maneuvers

Quartermaster Substitutes Fresh Yams for Canned Product.

Nearly a million pounds of sweet potatoes of the 1941 crop will be purchased by the quartermaster from producers of Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina for consumption by Lieutenant General Hugh Drum's First Army during its 57-day maneuvers in the Carolinas, Brigadier General James L. Frink, Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster, announced yesterday.

The order, substituting fresh potatoes for the canned product, followed announcement that the harvest in the three states will be heavier this year than usual. North Carolina farm officials announced that a 10 per cent gain over last year will be harvested, bringing the total to approximately 7,740,000 bushels. Georgia and South Carolina producers also report bumper crops.

First Army maneuvers got underway October 3, in North Carolina and South Carolina and will continue through November 30.

Flying Cadets Do Bubble Dance Read Sugar Reports--Oh, My!

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 17.—(AP)—In case any flying cadet's family thinks he has cracked up mentally, after reading his letters home, the Maxwell Field Tailwind gives them this "key" to his "slanguage":

A Chicago atomizer is an automatic rifle; cockpit fog means mentally lost; sacked is equivalent to being demoted or punished; new recruits are refugees and those who know nothing of military affairs are zombies; sweating out a mess is waiting in line for dinner; armored cow is canned milk; sugar reports are letters from the girl friend; bubble dancing is washing dishes, and blind flying used in connection with romance means blind date.

Mrs. Seydell Edits New Weekly

Mildred Seydell, whose column in the old Georgian was read by thousands, is now an editor and publisher in her own right.

A new paper, edited by Mrs. Seydell, appeared yesterday. Its title is "The Think Tank," and under the masthead appears the invitation "Drop Into It Your Thoughts and See the Best Splash in Print."

The new paper will appear every Thursday, dedicated, according to Mrs. Seydell in her front page column "Thinking in Type," to rugged individualism, "that of the old-time country editors who were concerned with self-express-sion, the lambasting of wrong, the praise of right, rather than with increased circulation and linage for ads."

How well Mrs. Seydell intends to cling to that conception the first issue reveals. Though the paper is to be an advertising medium as well as a medium for the expression of thought, no ads appear in Vol. 1, No. 1. Mrs. Seydell took them out to make room for news, an action unheard of in older newspaper circles.

Contributors to the first issue were Dudley Glass, of The Constitution; Ed Danforth, of the Journal, and Mrs. Edwin McCarty.

$10,000 Sought From Laundry Worker Here

Man Charges Superintendent Doused Him With Cleaning Fluid.

Because his woman supervisor in a laundry allegedly doused him with a dishpan of strong cleaning fluid, Carl Vanek Jr., 19, of 116 Lockwood avenue, is seeking $10,000 damages from the laundry and the accused woman, according to a suit filed in DeKalb county court yesterday.

Vanek claims the woman, Mrs. Flora Ivey, of 206 Palatka street, S. E., in a fit of "violent temper," on August 19, 1939, hurled a gallon mixture of "acetic acid, high test gasoline, ammonia and 'sour'" at him under a swinging door to the rest room where he was.

He alleges his feet, ankles, face and eyes became "inflamed, raw, painful and tender" because of the chemicals, and that his eyesight is 30 per cent impaired.

Vanek seeks the $10,000 from Mrs. Ivey and the laundry on the grounds officials of the company "should have known better" than to employ her.

NYA Delays Aid To Barron School

Formal plans for the National Youth Administration to operate David L. (Red) Barron's school at Monroe will not be submitted to Washington until the State Board of Education disposes of the institution's debts, Beisfeullet Jones, state NYA administrator, said yesterday.

The Monroe project is a resident project operated under a contract arrangement with the federal government and the Walton county board of education.

The State Board of Education last week voted to take over the school and make it the first state-owned vocational trades school.

'Black Market' Governor Plays In Food Faces Hide, Seek With British Action Press, Public

Prosecution of War-Time Racketeers May Begin Today.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Britain is on the verge of stern prosecution of persons involved in a wartime food racket of great magnitude, informed persons disclosed tonight.

The first cases may be brought into court tomorrow. Those in the know say they will deal with black market operations involving hundreds of tons of the most valuable foodstuffs, even those stocks which had been built up as a reserve against German invasion.

Scotland Yard and operatives of the food ministry uncovered the evidence of the racket. Traditionally, official sources maintained their silence today, even after the first story broke in the London Evening Press.

It was not unexpected, however, for in both the newspapers and in parliament there have been complaints for months about black market profiteering in food and clothing supplies, virtually all of which are rationed.

Informants disclosed tonight that the black market has operated both with stolen goods and through shadow corporations with fabricated trade turnover statements which built up large and secret stocks.

Such companies are reputed to have done a business amounting to hundreds of thousands of pounds a year.

Scores of food trucks have been hijacked and stolen throughout the country each week and their contents sold at high prices through the bootleg merchandising system.

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, charged that substantial quantities of maple syrup, intended for Canadian troops in England, had been diverted to the black bourse.

In some cases, informants said, bootleg operators have even obtained large cash advances from banks to carry out transactions masked as legitimate business, and reputable transport companies have been employed to move bootleg goods.

Inez Robb Says:

Wallis Returning in Triumph

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(INS)—Wallis, Duchess of Windsor, the Baltimore girl who made good, is going back home with the proof. The former Wallis Warfield, once a Baltimore belle, is returning to the old home town in October with the man who abdicated the throne of the world's greatest empire to become her husband.

At a date still unspecified, but probably during the second week in October, the Duchess—in the immortal manner of all proud wives—will take her ducal husband to Baltimore to meet the home folks. In the Maryland metropolis where the Duchess' mother once ran a boarding house to maintain her family in genteel poverty, H. R. H., the Duke of Windsor will meet his little woman's proud southern kith and kin.

Although the Duke and Duchess will come to New York following their Baltimore visit, no one who has talked with the Duchess in recent years can doubt but that the climax of the impending American-Canadian trip for her will be this return to the scenes of her childhood.

To Visit Uncle.

While in Baltimore, where she grew up, went to school and made her debut, the Duke and Duchess will stay with her uncle, General Henry M. Warfield. The venerable general, a brother of the Duchess' late father, and Mrs. Buchanan (Aunt Bessie) Merryman have long been her favorite relatives.

"I long to go home to see my uncle. He is not young and it has been ages since I last saw him," the Duchess told me when I interviewed her in her home in Paris 27 months ago. She said the same thing a year ago last August as she arrived with the Duke in Nassau, when he took over his duties as Governor General.

At long last her dream is coming true, and—what's more—doubled in spades. For the pretty girl, who was always just a poor relation to Baltimore's imposing social and financial class, is returning to the old home town in something that at least approximates triumph.

May Avoid Old Home.

Always extremely loyal to old friends, it is expected the Duchess will be genuinely delighted to see the middle-aged Baltimoreans with whom she grew up, attended school, made her debut and danced in her youth. And, naturally, it doesn't rub the fuzz of any peach to be able to present as one's husband H. R. H., the Duke of Windsor, brother of the King of England, and himself once head man as Edward VIII.

Also, it would be only natural if the Duchess, in her tours about Baltimore to show the Duke what's what and who's who, avoids No. 212 East Biddle street—not that anyone as frank as the Duchess would ever try to conceal the boarding house hash in her past. But it couldn't give either much pleasure to see her old home turned into a 50-cent per head museum for the edification of the curious after the abdication.

During their visit to New York the Duke and Duchess will be domiciled in a tower apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and not in a private home, International News Service learned today.

Terse Announcement.

"The Duke and Duchess will enter the United States from the Bahamas at Miami, Fla., on September 23 and will entrain for Washington the next morning," a terse British press service bulletin read. "They will leave Washington by train on the afternoon of September 26, arriving in Chicago on the following morning and in Calgary on the morning of September 30. They will then motor to the ranch, which is at High River, approximately 40 miles from Calgary.

The duration of the stay at the ranch is uncertain, but it is expected that the Duke and Duchess will remain about 10 days. The journey is being undertaken so that the Duke of Windsor may conduct some administrative business at his ranch, which he has not visited for 14 years. The visit, therefore, is both unofficial and private."

While in Washington, the Duke and Duchess will be guests at the British embassy. Their social engagements there are limited to a White House luncheon with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, followed by a cocktail party at the National Press Club for the Duke and a similar affair for the Duchess at the Willard, given by the members of the Women's National Press Club.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 pint a day. When function of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, grumpy, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Man Gives Up Here in $1,900 Pay Roll Theft

W. H. Clouse Also Held in Violation of Selective Service Act.

After having been sought by the police since October 18, 1940, on a charge of absconding with a $1,900 pay roll, William Hubert Clouse, 27, of Atlanta, gave himself up to his former employer yesterday.

Clouse was turned over to the federal authorities, who had a warrant out for him charging violation of the selective service act by failure to supply his local draft board with his proper address.

He pleaded guilty before U. S. Commissioner David Meyerhardt, excusing himself by saying: "I didn't give them my proper address because the state had a warrant for me."

Clouse was committed to Fulton County Jail on a $100 bond, but a "hold order" has been issued, so that, if he should make bond, he would be held for state authorities, it was said.

According to police, Clouse, a pay roll clerk for the Mion Construction Company, was given $1,900 on the afternoon of October 18, 1940, by C. R. Williams, paymaster of the company, who instructed him to deliver it to the paymaster at Plant Atkinson. Clouse disappeared, it was alleged.

Liberty Valley, Shakerag Row Flares Anew in Courts Here

Shed a tear for Liberty Valley, for it is no more—or is it? There was considerable difference of opinion, and something like an impending municipal revolution, after Judge Hugh M. Dorsey in superior court yesterday denied a motion seeking annulment of a court order annulling a franchise given the north Fulton county community, formerly called Shakerag, late last year.

Attorneys Ossie Singleton and Cecil Whiddon, representing Mayor John Bell, of the defunct—or is it?—municipality, asserted that the town held a de facto franchise, and meant to exercise it.

The cynical suggestion that back of the difficulty lay the right to operate a retail liquor store was made to the court by Bill Spence, attache of Solicitor General John Boykin's office, in questioning the mayor. This was denied.

However, Lucian Bell, cousin of the mayor and an Alpharetta justice of the peace, said his interpretation was that no such town now existed and that if his honor tried to establish a policeman he, the justice of the peace, would arrest him, the policeman, for impersonating an officer. Spence said the solicitor general's office likewise would watch the situation.

The original charter was granted by Judge Paul S. Etheridge, but later was revoked by him, at the instance of the solicitor general's office, to which a group of residents complained. The judge held he had acted under the misapprehension that a private charter was involved and that he was without authority to incorporate the town.

Both sides indicated it would be well to omit flowers.

They traced Clouse to his home in Knoxville, Tenn., but learned he just had preceded them and again had disappeared.

According to police, Clouse said that he had been in Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Penalty for violation of the draft act is a fine of $5,000, or five years in prison, or both.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—(P)—The crash sent the automobile rolling over and over for 30 yards, but when the machine stopped, upright, also upright was James F. Simpson. Uninjured, he found he was still puffing on a cigarette which had not been dislodged from his lips although the car was virtually demolished.

All Parisians Threatened by Nazi Reprisals

House-to-House Search Made; 50 Executed in Belgrade.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The German conquerors last night warned all Parisians that they were liable to be shot as hostages unless attacks on Nazi soldiers cease, and police in the occupied zone early today pressed house-to-house searches for hidden arsenals.

Up until midnight no further violence had been reported in either zone, but the stern warning followed the death of a Nazi non-commissioned officer who was shot in the back on a Paris boulevard Monday night.

(A British radio report heard in New York spoke of two German soldiers being killed and one wounded, but this appeared to be a recapitulation of attacks previously reported.)

Hitherto German firing squads have inflicted their multiple reprisals on those described as Communists and Jews. Now every German-controlled Paris billboard and newspaper carries the grave news that any Parisian, regardless of class, creed or occupation, may be shot.

At the same time, the Budapest newspaper, Nemzeti Ujsag, said 50 well-known Communists had been shot in Belgrade, former Yugoslavia, for the slaying of a German soldier.

A Zagreb, Croatia, dispatch said it was learned the railway between Sarajevo and Brod has been blown up and two bombs were thrown at a bus between Zagreb and the local airdrome. A German air force corporal and a private in the bus were injured. Serb rebels were blamed. More than 1,000 Norwegians arrested during the week-old state of civil siege were tried by court-martial and sent to prison camps in Germany or in the Norwegian interior, Stockholm dispatches from Oslo said.

University professors and many labor leaders were among those sentenced. Jens Tangen, president of the Federation of Labor, was sent to a concentration camp in Germany.

Roosevelt Stems Reported Move To Oust Palmer

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—President Roosevelt was reported today to have intervened with a personal letter to stop a quiet campaign in government housing circles to eliminate Charles F. (Chuck) Palmer of Atlanta, as defense housing co-ordinator.

No comment was forthcoming either from the White House or Palmer, but according to a story given prominent display in the Washington Daily News today the letter was addressed to Palmer "without benefit of brass bands or publicity," turning over to him in toto the job of determining priority needs for housing.

Federal Works Administrator John Carmody, whose agency has jurisdiction over another field of government housing, is reported to have instigated the quiet campaign for having Palmer eliminated from the housing picture. They are known to have been in disagreement over matters of housing policy for some time.

Newspaper Comment.
Commenting on the White House development the News had the following to say regarding the intervention:

"It gives Palmer authority to determine need for priority ratings for defense housing being built by any and all federal agencies—including Carmody's operations. After he makes his determination, it will be up to the new Priorities Board of OPM to issue or not issue the order."

"That Carmody is wrathful over this new development seems highly probable. For (under cover) he has been telling all housing agencies to ignore Palmer's persistent efforts and deal with him, John Carmody, only."

"It will be recalled that Carmody, referring to Palmer at a recent congressional hearing, declared he never knew before that co-ordinator was spelled 'd-i-c-t-a-t-o-r'."

"The President's letter of authority to Palmer does create, however, an annoying situation. Palmer, in addition to his new authority, already is responsible for determining need for defense housing."

Plans for Carmody.

When this is ordered by the President, Carmody is supposed to take over and do the building, for he controls practically all available funds for such work through the Lanham acts. And he's been trying, unsuccessfully, to wrest the determination of need function from Palmer.

"Just how this new obiter dictum will work out is highly problematical. But it comes just as OPM's revitalized priorities division is ready to announce a definite policy and procedure on making materials available for defense housing."

LeCraw Urges FBI Man

by H. Y. McCord Sr., was in charge of the referendum petition to submit the ordinance vesting Hornsby with complete administrative powers to the people in a special election.

The Rev. W. Lee Cutts, Mrs. Byron Mathews, E. A. Peeples, B. F. Woodward and E. A. Wachendorf were other members of the committee, but proponents said others will be added.

They plan to invoke charter provisions for the "initiative," which stipulate that when 10 per cent of the voters sign a petition asking for an election to pass on any law, it is mandatory on council to call an election within 30 days after the petition has been certified.

Sponsors plan to have the petition ready by the October 6 council session, at which LeCraw's veto will be considered.

City Attorney Jack C. Savage said yesterday that the registration list of the 1940 general city election would be used in the projected election, and that if a majority vote for the ordinance, it will have been passed and can not thereafter be repealed except by a vote of the people.

City Clerk Joe Richardson said 26,002 names appeared on the 1940 general city election registration lists, and that 3,601 will be needed to force the election.

Previous Election.
The last time a "petitioner" election was held in Atlanta was in March, 1932, when prohibition and labor leaders joined in a futile effort to recall the then Mayor James L. Key.

"In presenting this plan to the people of Atlanta, I want to say that I have gone along this year trying my best to keep peace and harmony in the police department between the various factions, and as recently as last Monday urged the police committee to give the chief unlimited authority in the administration of the department," the mayor said.

"This the police committee members gladly agreed to do. 'I realize, however, that even this is, at best, but a stop gap, since the troubles of the police department lie far deeper—including factionalism, interdepartmental hatreds and jealousies and outside interference. I believe the plan for the director of public safety offers to the people of Atlanta, for the first time, an opportunity to clean up once and for all the law enforcement problems of this city.'"

McCord's Statement.
McCord, temporary head of the citizens' committee for the referendum election, issued a statement in which he said the veto of the ordinance vesting Hornsby with full authority, leaves but two courses open to make it effective—passage of the measure over the mayor's veto, and second, the referendum election.

"Believing that a vital issue is at stake in lifting the question of law enforcement out of politics and putting the police department on a basis by which the chief can be held responsible for efficient service on the part of every member of the department, without political interference from any source, I strongly favor a referendum, provided the general council does not override the mayor's veto at its next meeting, October 6," McCord said.

"The city charter provides that,

City's Health Services Face Interruption

Doctors Leave for Better Pay; Four Positions Must Be Filled.

City public health services, which last year administered 119,000 examinations and treatments, will be imperiled on October 1 unless the municipal government is able to fill places vacated by four physicians.

Dr. James F. Hackney, assistant city health officer, and Stafford W. Graydon, city personnel director, were in conference yesterday on the matter, and will continue their discussions today with Mayor LeCraw participating.

The impending interruption of the services is the result of a "mistake" in the language of a resolution passed at last Monday's session of council. After several conferences, council's finance committee voted to raise the starting salary of doctors from $225 a month to $300, but the resolution which was passed carried a starting figure of $250 a month. Graydon has advertised once to fill the posts with the starting salary at $225 but had no takers. He advised it be raised to $300 as an emergency only.

Dr. Elkin Vogt, Dr. Malcolm P. Mullen, Dr. M. M. Neel and Dr. Vance Jackson, the latter a dentist, already have severed their relations with the city to accept more remunerative jobs or will do so by October 1, health officials said. Their places must be filled. The doctors last year had 44,950 clinical visits, made 5,200 visits to the homes of ill patients, examined about 20,000 food handlers, inspected the teeth of 48,000 Atlanta school children and gave dental treatment in the city hall office to 950 students.

Schools in County On Alert for Polio

Every precaution against occurrence of infantile paralysis will be taken in the county school system, it was made clear yesterday by Dr. Rufus F. Payne, assistant county health officer.

Nurses will be maintained in daily contact with all schools, and any children showing symptoms of illness will be reported immediately by teachers.

Deprecating prevalent fear of an epidemic, Dr. Payne pointed out there had not been a case of infantile paralysis involving a county school pupil since August 15, or a case of any description in the county since September 2.

Attendance in county schools, excepting those in the Buckhead vicinity, was termed normal yesterday by Superintendent Jere A. Wells.

Record-Breaking Revenue Bill Waits F. D. R. Signature

Congress Gives Final Approval to Measure Raising $3,553,400,000 To Help Finance Huge Defense Program.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The record-breaking revenue bill—designed to raise $3,553,400,000 to help finance the huge defense program—received the final approval of congress today and was dispatched to President Roosevelt.

The history-making measure is expected to lift federal revenues above the $13,000,000,000 mark next year but, because of mounting defense expenditures, it will not be enough to carry out Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion that two-thirds of governmental costs be paid from taxation and only one-third from borrowing.

Only a scattering of "No's" was heard when the measure—a compromise between separate bills passed by the senate and house—was voted upon finally in the senate.

There was some protest from Senators McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, and Thomas, Democrat, Utah, because strategic metals industries were not exempted from excess profits taxes. A provision for this purpose had been voted by the senate but was knocked out by a conference committee which adjusted senate-house differences.

After the senate action, John T. Jones, director of Labor's Non-partisan League and CIO legislative representative, declared the bill would place "an extremely heavy burden on low income groups least able to pay, while failing to tax adequately big corporation and wealthy individuals."

The legislation will affect, directly or indirectly, practically every citizen and will bring an estimated 4,930,000 additional persons under the income tax structure by lowering exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals.

The lowering of exemptions is estimated to raise $303,000,000 of additional revenue, but only $47,000,000 of this is expected to be paid by new taxpayers. The remainder will come from persons already paying income taxes.

Although bringing many "little fellows" under the income levy, the measure will simplify their job of making out returns by providing a special optional form for gross incomes up to $3,000. Under this form, a man need merely compute his income and then consult a table which shows the amount of tax due.

Charges Against Athens

Evangelist Dismissed

WAYNESVILLE, N. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Charges that Evangelist M. D. Garrett obstructed traffic on Main street here were dismissed in mayor's court today because of a lack of evidence.

Garrett, whose home is in Athens, Ga., is holding tent revival services near Hazelwood, a mile from Waynesville. He was arrested last Saturday while reading the Bible in front of the courthouse. He was lodged in jail until a $300 bond was raised by friends. Several hundred persons had gathered around the jail and demanded his release. When he walked out they started singing "The Old Time Religion."

Urges Neutrality Act End

Russia under the lease-lend act." The defeat of Adolf Hitler is "our present national objective." The convention decided, and then voted a demand that "if fighting is necessary to defend the United States, we insist upon being prepared to do the fighting outside of the United States."

Near the close of the convention the delegates accepted New Orleans' invitation to entertain the 1942 meeting September 21 to 25, after Atlantic City, the other principal contender, withdrew.

The first fireworks of the day came when the foreign relations committee brought forward a three-point program stating: "We approve and endorse the foreign policy of the President and the congress; "We urge the immediate repeal of the so-called neutrality act; "We urge all Americans to join us in a united, wholehearted and unwavering support of our government's foreign policy; to the end that the American way of life may survive in a world of free men."

Mingled shouts for and against were heard throughout the spacious auditorium. There was bitter comment about "Bloody Joe" and the Communists.

Matter of Strategy.

On the other side, there were declarations that the fight against Adolf Hitler was an American fight and that, while America need not approve of Communism, it was purely a matter of good strategy to help Russia fight the Nazis.

"We shall take care of the Communists in this country when the proper time comes," one delegate shouted. The foreign relations committee report was adopted by a voice vote after the minority's resolution was laid on the table.

The convention voted a 20-point program on general aspects of national defense, adopted six points dealing with the Army, 12 concerning the Navy, seven bearing on aeronautics and five relating to the Merchant Marine.

"Our present national objective is the defeat of Hitler and what he stands for, and all diverging controversies should be subordinated to the main objective," the defense committee asserted.

Appeal for Unity. "We appeal for unity on this national objective."

The basic elements of national defense, the convention said, were: (a) The ability to apply any fraction or all of our manpower and war industrial resources promptly and efficiently—by universal military training and federal regulation of war supply agencies.

(b) The ability to carry war, when unavoidable, to our enemy, and thus prevent him from bringing war to us. This ability will require removal of all geographical limitation on movement of forces and adequate provision for corresponding plans and material.

(c) Our great potential bulwarks are the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. These oceans will be our greatest assets or worst liabilities, according to our strength or weakness therein. They represent the base of our world strategy."

This declaration was followed immediately by one to the effect that the Legion wants America strong enough to meet any possible attack before it arrives and to turn an enemy back "so that our homes remain intact and our families secure."

Election Set Today.

The rapid disposal of these vital questions left the choice of a new national commander as the principal business for tomorrow's final session.

Two candidates appeared to be leading the field—Lynn U. Stambaugh, of North Dakota, the Legion kingmaker's choice, and Edward Scheiberling, of New York, one of the rank-and-file choices.

Both Maurice Stember, campaign manager for Scheiberling, and Ben Dorris, leading the Stambaugh forces, claimed they had more than the necessary majority of votes for the respective candidates. The ballot, under convention rules, will be by roll call.

Reports flew fast among the Legion politicians that other candidates would withdraw in favor of one or another of the leading contenders. Other candidates included Rosan Waring, of Tennessee; Ray Fields, of Oklahoma; Warren Atherton, of California; Charles W. Crush, of Virginia; Paul Armstrong, of Illinois; Dr. W. J. Danforth, of Texas, and Jack Crowley, of Vermont.

Resolution Adopted.

The convention adopted the following resolution: "We have confidence in and pledge our support to our government, our President, our War Department, and our Navy Department."

"We want America strong enough to meet any possible attack before it arrives and to turn the enemy back so that our homes remain intact and our families secure," the national defense committee declared. "If fighting is necessary to defend the United States, we insist upon being prepared to do the fighting outside of the United States."

"Naval bases should include the Philippines, Iceland and other key islands in both the Atlantic and Pacific as may become available."

"We recommend universal military training and federal regulation of war supply agencies."

"We demand continuing production in all industry vital to national defense and compulsory arbitration of all labor disputes therein."

"We commend those labor organizations which have sought to purge themselves of subversive elements."

"We recommend the tender and acceptance of the resignation of the present secretary of labor."

British, Soviet Officers Enter Iran's Capital

Reds Take Control Quickly With Parachute, Tank Forces.

TEHERAN, Iran, Sept. 17.—(AP) Hundreds of Russian parachute troops and strong mechanized forces occupied the strategic outskirts of Teheran today and both Russian and British staff officers entered the capital to forestall any friction with the Iranians.

The 400 Red parachute troops which were dropped on the edge of the capital took control of the roads so quickly that they even barred the way to approaching British troops for a short time. One bespectacled Soviet liaison officer halted a British brigadier 12 miles from Teheran, produced a map, and vaguely waved at the entire Teheran area as filled with the Red army.

The astonished British officer sent his 12 armored cars through the Russian lines with instructions to stop at a bridgehead five miles further on.

A German motorcade of diplomats, women and children en route to Turkey after the abdication yesterday of Reza Shah Pahlavi was halted by the Russians at Karaj, 25 miles northwest of here. The former Shah himself, ousted because of suspicion of pro-

Nazi sentiments, arrived at Isfahan, 210 miles south of the capital. He plans to go abroad as soon as the trouble blows over.

Russian troops under Major General Novikov moved into the Teheran area some 20,000 strong. Fifty-three Soviet tanks lumbered onto the airfield and Red troops took over Iranian army and air force barracks. A brigade of British troops was approaching from the southwest.

While the troops moved in, Mohammed Shah Pahlavi, 21-year-old successor to the throne, swore before parliament to uphold the constitution.

On British initiative, the government sent a note to the Japanese legation demanding surrender of the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, the pre-war leader of Arab revolts in Palestine. He was reported to have taken refuge with the Japanese.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPT. 18, 1941.

Russ Crisis Nears

As a nation, Americans have become very optimistic in the past month over the chances of the Russian armies. It may be well now to temper this optimism, because a severe reaction is more than possible.

The news from the fighting fronts in the past few days has not been good. Leningrad, it is true, holds firm, and its reduction undoubtedly should take months. Oesel Island, a key point in the control of the Gulf of Finland, apparently is strongly held and flanks any major German naval thrust toward Kronstadt and Leningrad.

But there is very serious news in the reports from the southern front. The Dnieper river should have been held against German thrusts for a much longer time. Yet there is evidence the Nazis have thrust across wide bridgeheads and are striking in force eastward toward the industrially vital Don basin. Another is reported advancing toward the Crimea, and the great Russian naval base at Sevastopol. Reduction of this base would seal the fate of Odessa and greatly reduce the threat of any flanking operation against German armies marching deeper and deeper into the Ukraine toward the Caucasus oil fields, control of the Black sea and the route to India.

If this southern drive maintains the impetus it seemingly has obtained, the position of the Soviet forces is grave, not next spring, but this month. But even more grave is the position of Great Britain and the United States. Because Hitler may be able to maintain the status quo for several years until he has harnessed the riches of the Ukraine and the Caucasus and can strike westward again in great force.

Loss of the Caucasus means that the last chance of the British-American allies to funnel supplies to the Russian armies in any great quantity is virtually lost. And without them the Russian armies are lost. The Nazis, too, are striking at a time of year when it is impossible for the British to divert many troops from Middle Eastern positions. Many must be held to meet the threat of a German march through Turkey toward the Suez while others already have been pinned down by the mechanized threat of the Nazis in Libya. Still others must garrison Iraq, Iran, India and Singapore.

It would not be amiss for Americans to prepare for serious news from Russia and for serious repercussions in this country. The blitz machine again is rolling in South Russia and unless it is held or shattered quickly the war effort of this country to date will appear child's play to that which will be required. That the British and American governments recognize the crisis is attested by the fact that the supply mission now in London will be sent to Moscow with the utmost dispatch and that badly needed bombers in Britain will be risked on Soviet fields and in dangerous flights across Germany.

The war in Russia has entered its most critical stage.

Here we are, just short of war, and still not knowing what it is that Bowes is major of.

How nice to feel that the boom in defense employment is absorbing the thousands who only lately were occupied in such non-essential lines as singing the "Hut-Sut" song.

Quite Apropos

Every once in a while an editorial is written which must, in part, be revised in the light of subsequent events over which neither man nor the editorial page can have control.

Such is the case of an editorial written some few months ago in which the Nazis were taken to task very strongly for their action in turning over the occupation of Greece to Italian troops, those shameful victors of the valiant retreat into Albania.

The editorial was entirely too harsh. The news reports over-emphasized the affair, and it is entirely pleasant to note they did not quite mean what they said.

For a neutral observer reporting from Ankara has this week clarified matters. The Germans have given some administrative control to the Italians.

They are in charge of the canal sewer in the port of Athens. And distasteful though it may be, one must apologize to the Germans in this instance. They made use of a decent sense of the rightful proportion of things.

The latest on the great gasoline crackdown appears to be that Babe Ickes, who came up swinging three bats, has tapped into a double play.

First Rebellion

The revolt of labor's rank and file, which many have foreseen as a result of John L. Lewis' dictatorial rule of the United Mine Workers, has come at last in a Pennsylvania district, heart of his strength.

Background of the revolt lies in an effort of Lewis' UMWA to increase assessments from $2 to $6 a year to build up the UMWA's treasury. Also involved is a district dues increase of 50 cents.

To Lewis, this is a "routine affair" and he didn't want to talk about it. But even to Lewis it is much more than a routine affair, and much more serious than he would care to indicate.

For Lewis' control of the CIO, and through it much of American labor, rests in the UMWA. Mine workers' funds were used in large part to finance the organization of the CIO and the increased assessment may be necessary in part because of this financing. Certain it is that it would create a huge reserve for some purpose not yet evident.

If successful, this rank-and-file revolt may lead to further revolts, particularly in heavy-assessment AFL unions, and quite possibly could lead to an overthrow of present leaders of both labor factions and eventual peace in unionism.

Unionism has done itself great harm in recent years. But there is in this revolt the possibility that saner leaders may gain control of the movement and that the goal of the Roosevelt administration—a true balance between big business on one hand and labor on the other—may be obtained. It cannot so long as the majority of Americans distrust the motives of the leaders of the union movement. The rank and file of the unions is your neighbor and mine, yet they have little control over the actions of their national leaders. This revolt may be a forerunner of a return to saner practices.

Patriotism

Congratulations are in order for the men of Captain Paul H. Dolman's company at Camp Wheeler who, without any sales talk or build up from anybody, went to the camp postoffice last week and, in a body, bought their first defense savings stamps—with the determination to continue purchasing individually until there are enough stamps to buy a defense savings bond. In the words of their captain: "The project had its origin in the ranks."

The action of these men is more than a good news story. It is something that should cheer the countless Americans who "always knew that our boys were right," and it is something that should do much to convince doubters that Uncle Sam's expanding army has in its ranks the kind of human material, the sort of patriotism, that not only made this nation great, but is responsible for keeping it great in perhaps the most critical period of her history.

It is interesting also to note that these men were selectees, young men taken by force of events from homes and jobs in private life and inducted into training in the Army. They cheerfully accepted this change in their lives and found it to their liking. No one told them to buy the defense savings stamps which are so important a part of the national defense effort. And already they were doing their share by serving in the Army. Yet they took it upon themselves to do more.

Georgia Editors Say:

PRODUCING BETTER TREES

(From The Valdosta Daily Times)

Announcement by the United States Forest Service of a plan for propagation of selected pine trees gives promise of much greater gum yield and improvement in the quality of timber to be used for saw mill purposes.

The method of selective propagation of choice trees is similar to the selective plan of breeding high-grade hogs, cattle and other livestock.

The plan calls for the securing of cutting from particularly choice trees and the "breeding" of these cuttings. These cuttings will be developed in a nursery system and then transplanted into the forests.

It is the confident prediction of the United States Forest Service that the program might easily result in the planting of entire tracts in selected trees, thereby materially increasing the gum yield and at the same time growing only the choicest trees for lumber uses.

Heretofore timber has been allowed to largely re-seed itself or nursery stock from seeds selected at random have been used in reforestation. With this newly developed method it will be possible to propagate only the most select trees, thereby insuring forests of the finest timber.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

EXPOSING LINDBERGH WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—In all of the criticism that has been leveled at Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh for his juvenile excursion into the field of international relations, it has remained for one of his few former admirers among newspapermen to make the most devastating expose yet made of the weakness of his position.

Somewhat the working press of the country—the reporters assigned to the actual task of covering his activities—the most effective shared the public's esteem for the aviator. He did not live up to their conception of the national hero he had come to be in the popular imagination.

For one thing, he would never co-operate, though apparently nonetheless agreeable to accepting the fruits of the publicity he continually received. He wanted his pictures in the papers, but didn't like to pose. The stories printed about him were pleasing enough, but he was rarely willing to put himself out to be helpful.

PLAYED FAVORITES

Worst of all, he played favorites with a select few. For example, the time he moved his family to Europe. It was a big story of the day and he confided his plans to only one newspaperman who, in scoping the others, made enemies for Lindbergh. There was no reason why all should have shared the news.

One of the exceptions among the newspaper contingent was Harlan Miller, columnist for the Des Moines Register and Tribune, who wrote nice things about him, despite the critical attitude of his associates.

Having had this friendly attitude in the beginning, Mr. Miller is all the more qualified to raise questions of doubt at the present Lindbergh course of action. He has done so in the most effective way. Preliminary to the recent Lindbergh speech in Des Moines the columnist addressed a series of questions to the flying colonel in a public letter printed under his name. The questions were considered so appropriate that Senator Herring, of Iowa, has caused them to be printed in the Congressional Record.

Here they are, offered without further comment:

PERTINENT QUESTIONS "You keep saying that you represent 80 per cent of the American people. But four months ago, when you began to say that, accurate surveys by Gallup, an Iowan, showed 71 per cent of the American people favoring you to prevent a British defeat, 68 per cent favoring you for it if it's the only way to beat the Axis. Knowing that, can you continue truthfully to say you represent 80 per cent of the American people?"

"How much were you unconsciously influenced by Dr. Alexis Carrel, the notorious French Fascist, your mentor in the mechanical heart experiments, whose views helped bring ruin to France? Were you a victim of his foreign 'isms'? Have you been influenced or helped on your speeches by Sylvester Viereck, Lothrop Stoddard, or Lawrence Dennis, the pro-Nazi propagandists?"

"What do you mean by your veiled, subtle cries for an immediate change of government? You are apparently using the 'Lufthansa' method not provided in our constitution? Who are your backers? Are they Old-Guard politicians like Mr. Hoover's Bill Castle, who is so fond of Japan? You were frank about your backers in 1927. Will you be frank about them tonight?"

SERIOUS BLUNDERS "You blundered about the numbers and inevitability of the Lufthansa. You blundered in June, 1940, when you told senators England would last only 30 to 60 days. You blundered about the weakness of the Russian air force. You blundered when you urged no sale of offensive weapons (bombers) to England, but only defensive weapons (pursuit planes), while Army fliers laughed at you, because both types are both offensive and defensive. Do you still think yourself infallible?"

"A man who has accused the President of 'deception' cannot expect to be handled with gloves, must accept some mild criticism of himself. Why have you said so much to hurt the British, but nothing to help them? Why have you said so much to help the Nazis, but nothing to hurt them? Did you denounce the Russians as Nazi allies? Then why do you denounce them as Britain's allies?"

"What makes you so positive you are safe from Nazi aggression? In 1918 we sent 2,000,000 men to head off Germany. Why are you so certain the Nazis couldn't send 2,000,000 men to this hemisphere, especially if they had the British, French, Italian, Russian and Japanese fleets and shipyards? Is there something in the Nazi ideology that appeals to you? Aren't you horrified by any of it?"

WHY SILENT THEN? "Since Germany invaded Poland, you have been silent. In 1939, when you told us Hitler was a sneak, you were silent. Why didn't you make any radio speeches in the three years after 1936, when you discovered Germany's air strength, to urge America to build an air force? Why were you silent then?"

"Are you politically ambitious? If so, why not admit it in your speech here tonight? Are your speeches merely an all-out political attack on the President? Where did you acquire your ethnic and strategic knowledge? On what basis did you head off Washington?"

"Even your severest critics, Mr. Lindbergh, once your admirers, are honestly curious about your position and mystified by it. If some of these questions seem harsh, it is because they reflect the degree of their mystification, their disillusion."

"I don't believe the petty, stupid, little stories told against you. I'm unwilling to dismiss you as a Wrong-way Corrigan, headed toward Berlin when you think you're headed toward Washington. For good reasons, would you change your mind? Will you answer these questions? Or will this be another Coughlin, Moseley, Pelley, Silvermaster speech? If you are truly patriotic, you will answer them, or at least ask them of yourself, when you are alone with your conscience."

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Touch of Realism.

I haven't any statistics on the number of detective novels and stories published in the English language per annum. I'm a devotee of the mystery novel, however, and revel in murder yarns that are gory, blood-spattered on every other page. And I know, whenever I visit my favorite lending library, there's always a fresh supply of the mystifying books.

Sometimes I've gathered the impression that fully 25 per cent of the population writes detective stories. Maybe it's higher than that. For there must be thousands written that are never published—not good enough—for each one that sees the light of the printed page.

But I have a suggestion to make to some good author of this class. Why not a little realism about the problems of police and detective work? Not all cities have perfect sleuthing organizations, you know, and sometimes the best of detectives work against personal or political handicaps that add much to the difficulties of their job.

Here's a true story about a couple of Atlanta detectives and a safe cracker, for instance, that I offer as an example of the sort of thing I mean.

A Safe Is Cracked.

Story opens with discovery that the safe in a manufacturing plant's office had been opened and the contents stolen during the night. Two of the city's most experienced detectives are assigned to the case. The sleuths begin their operations by inspecting the opened safe, the office that was burglarized and all the visible evidence on the scene of the crime.

Now it is a well-known fact in detective and police circles that all burglars, or safe crackers, have individualities that are revealed in the manner in which they perform their illegal projects. To the experienced sleuth there are always distinguishing bits of evidence about a crime perpetrated by a professional criminal which reveal the man's identity. They can look at the way a nitroglycerin was poured, for instance, and say, positively, "Jimmy the Blaster" did this job. Or they can examine the window out of which a piece of glass was cut, to gain entrance, and say, with equal as-urance, "This is the work of Diamond Joe." And so on.

So, in the crime we are now investigating, one detective said to the other, "This was done by So-and-So."

"Looks like him," he sure, said the other. "But it can't be. Remember we arrested him for another job, six months ago. He was then convicted and sentenced. He's serving time in the Georgia penitentiary, right now."

"Well," commented the other, with a doubtful shake of the head, "It sure looks like he cracked this safe, and no one else. Mebbe we'd better check. He might have escaped, you know."

What Was Revealed.

Then the author could take the detectives through the routine of checking on So-and-So's—the burglar—security in prison. Could make it suspenseful and absorbing.

And a big surprise when the detectives discovered their suspect had been paroled, by a tender-hearted Governor, just one week before the latest safe-cracking occurred. And then, of course, there'd be the running down of So-and-So once again, the trial and conviction and the return to prison—to await another parole.

Five Chances.

It does seem as though a criminal caught and convicted has too heavy odds in his favor. He has five chances to win acquittal, pardon or parole. He can line up his pitiful old mother, the gullible souls who consider him merely a fine character woefully misunderstood, before five tribunals.

First, there's the recorder's court. Then the criminal court or the superior court. Then he can seek clemency from the county authorities. If all have failed and he still faces prison, he can lobby his story into the ears of the state pardon and parole board. And last, but by no means least among his prospects for clemency, there is the Governor.

Those who fail at all these barriers to punishment, and actually serve their sentences, surely must be guilty.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Evades NEW YORK, Sept. 17. President Roosevelt's Point has now dropped that other shoe in his two-part discussion in Collier's of the attempt to pack, or unpack, the federal courts and I find, on careful study of both pieces, that he has entirely evaded discussion of one of the principal points of the original proposal which was slyly expressed and was denounced as iniquitous.

So fast and confusing has been the rush of events in these years of the New Deal, and so superficial is most of our reading on vital issues, that the court fight left most of us with an impression that only the supreme court was to have been packed or, if you insist, unpacked. However, the original bill called for the appointment of additional circuit and district judges as well who, obviously, would be chosen for their political bias, and there was a further provision expressed in just two words, "hereafter appointed," that these new men and these men only might be assigned to duty outside their home districts.

John C. Knox, the senior judge of the southern district of New York, a New Dealer himself, detected and denounced this hidden-ball trick in the hearings held by the senate judiciary committee and he deals with that opposition of his in his memoirs, "A Judge Comes of Age," published this year. Quoting from his statement to the judiciary committee, Judge Knox's book reads:

"Passing now to a feature of the proposed bill that seems not to have been particularly stressed in the hearings held before your committee and which, in my opinion, is almost as objectionable as that which has to do with the supreme court, I call attention to provisions of the act dealing with the assignment of judges from one circuit or district to another. If the new circuit and district judges who come to power under the plans of the President are to be selected because of their young blood and forward-looking ideas, the bill now under consideration exhibits a consistency of purpose that is of sinister aspect to every man who, upon principle, is opposed to the use of a stacked deck of cards."

Judge Knox then puts a finger on the two stealthy words, "hereafter appointed," and asks, "What good reason can be advanced for the exclusion from needed service of men who, for years, have demonstrated ability and impartiality and who are qualified by experience to discharge any judicial task that may come before them? If I were asked to answer the question I should reply that, without further information from the proponents of the bill, there is a possibility that somewhere there is someone who fears that judges heretofore appointed might not be amenable to suggestion as to how particular cases should be decided. So far as the southern district of New York is concerned, I desire that it should never for any purpose whatsoever be beleaguered by a flying squadron of judges who, perhaps under some conditions might be classified as privateers."

Stressed By Committee The report of the judiciary committee addressed in similar vein this now conveniently forgotten attempt to pack the lower courts. The committee also put a finger on those two words "hereafter appointed" and said that such a plan "creates a flying squadron of itinerant judges appointed for districts and circuits where they are not needed, to be transferred to other parts of the country for judicial service."

"To a greater and greater degree," the committee reported, "under modern conditions, the government is involved in litigation with its citizens. Are we then through the system devised in this bill to make possible the selection of particular judges to try particular cases?"

And in the summary of the adverse report the judiciary committee flatly charged that the bill was presented to congress "in a most intricate form and for reasons that obscured its real purpose."

"It contains the germ of a system of centralized administration of law that would enable an executive so minded to send his judges into every judicial district in the land to sit in judgment on controversies between the government and the citizen. It is a measure that should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America."

Here both a judge democratic in his politics and sympathetic with the New Deal and the Senate Judiciary Committee expose a subtlety and impugn the good faith of its proponents and the committee flatly charges that the real purpose of the bill was obscured.

This whole issue is ignored, however, in President Roosevelt's triumphant and self-vindicating magazine discussion of the fight.

four miles in length were captured Saturday by the British and French armies."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

HALF A LEAGUE ONWARD I remember very well a few scenes in Dr. Edwin Mims' English classes at Vanderbilt University. He had one class in which he specialized in poetry. And in Tennyson's poetry.

I memorized, for the good doctor, some 1,800 lines of Mr. Tennyson's poetry. Even now, on occasion, I can quote several hundred lines from the good gentleman's verses.

Dr. Mims insisted on his students remaining awake in class and also on coming to realize that poetry, good poetry, had a power to awaken the emotions.

He would read some stirring poetry and demand that his class respond. I recall one of his favorite poems for the illustrating of creating an image and the feeling of power. It was:

Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

"Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Charge for the guns!" he said:
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

"Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismayed?
Not though the soldier knew
Some one had blundered:

Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die;
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

I recall the first time he read the poem. Mr. Matt Wigginton, now a successful coffee merchant, had just had his head shaved as a part of the Owl Club's initiation. Mr. Wigginton sat and listened calmly.

"Don't sit there like a dumb oyster," said Dr. Mims, glaring at his shaven head. "Can't you hear the horses' hoofs and smell the powder?"

Mr. Wigginton allowed he couldn't.

"Dear me, dear me," said Dr. Mims. "Conrad, see if you can hear them."

FRANCE AND ENGLAND France and England were, together then, Russia was to be kept out. It was 1855—and September—that Sebastopol fell after a historic siege.

The poem celebrates a blunder at Balaklava. Blunders, especially in wars, are not new things. They are writing now, about Dunkirk, and about the failure to meet Hitler in the Low Countries.

The men on the beach at Dunkirk, strafed by the planes, knew someone had blundered.

War brings changes. When France and England fought together in 1855 against Russia, it was the first time in two centuries they had been allies.

Today Russia is an ally of England's after diplomatic blunders which led to the realistic, cynically opportunistic Russians signing a treaty with the Germans and getting properly blistered for it.

There have been a lot of blunders since the blunder of about 90 years ago when the 600 cavalrymen, a patrol in today's great battles, made a charge against heavy guns even though they knew the order was an error.

Today the German Black sea fleet should be able to land troops on the Crimean peninsula and drive out the defenders of Odessa and the Ukraine. Indeed, one wonders they waited so long. The weather may halt them although nothing has happened yet to indicate that weather stops an army equipped with blitz materials. It didn't halt the Russian army in Finland when the real Russian army got started against the gallant, war-weary Finns.

Still, it may. The Germans have been winning. They were ready as no force has been ready before. They were ready because those who planned were in authority and acted without asking how the people felt about it.

It remains, however, inconceivable that the Germans can keep going on without becoming war-weary themselves. Even the vitamins of victory cannot always replace sleep and rest.

THE OIL WELLS

From Sebastopol it is but about 500 miles to the rich oil fields. Batum, the oil port, is no farther away. Baku, on the Caspian sea, is the pathway to Mosul.

Oil, refineries and wells, are what the Germans want out of Russia.

It begins to look as if they are not planning to try and conquer Russia before winter comes. The seem to be setting the stage for the smashing of Leningrad and Odessa.

From there they would, by landing troops in the Crimea, strike for the wells and refineries. If they get them they will have the oil to fight in other fields and—if they decide—to try the invasion of England.

Turkey will be getting more nervous.

One may be sure that right now the diplomacy is heavy and gold-filled.

Turkey is signed up with England, Russia and with Berlin.

If she joins the Allies she may save herself but cannot avoid invasion and war.

If she joins with Germany she loses all authority and self-rule. And risks invasion and some destruction. It is not a happy choice. The Turks do not care to have some future historian write how they blundered. Neither they, nor anyone else, can guess which would be best for them.

The Allies need them badly. Allied prestige had increased of late. A decision by Turkey to go with Germany and actively enter the war on her side would be a heavy blow.

One may but hope for the best.

Like It Or Not, a Sick Man Takes the Medicine That Has Cured Others

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In a recent Sunday evening broadcast, reviewing the lessons learned from two years of warfare, Major Elliott emphasized one truth which should have been known to all men at the beginning, since it was known to Alexander and Hannibal and Genghis Kahn and Tamerlane and Napoleon and Washington and Lee and all the other great military leaders.

This ancient truth, newly demonstrated by the Nazis, is that no great enterprise can succeed without unity of command and centralized control.

We are not yet in a shooting war, and all sane people pray that we never shall be,

Much Better Than Average Movies Here

Three Shows Move in, While Some Are Held Over.

By DUDLEY GLASS.

A much better than average screen program is promised for Atlanta movie houses this week. Or, at least, more interesting.

The Fox brings Jack Benny in "Charley's Aunt." Loew's Grand presents "Lady Be Good," first musical comedy in quite a time.

The Capitol shows a new Scattergood Baines chapter for three days, switching Sunday to "The Prisoner of Zenda."

The Rialto retains "Our Wife," The Paramount has taken over "Dive Bomber" from the Fox. "When Ladies Meet" will be held at the Rhodes.

'Charley's Aunt'

The immortal "Charley's Aunt," with Jack Benny playing the old lady from Brazil, "where the nuts come from," begins its run today at the Fox. As I remember, Syd Chaplin was the most recent to play it on the screen.

Kay Francis is the lady in the case and the cast includes James Ellison, Reginald Owen and a number of lesser known film folk. The theme is older than Shakespeare. Mistaken identity. In this case a frameup of Oxford student in trouble. Needs an aunt from Brazil. Friend Benny volunteers to dress up in wig, corset and skirts to be the aunt.

Reason Charles requires an aunt is for a chaperon, for he and his pal have two girls, one Baxter and Arlene Whelan—who are coming for a visit. And they just won't come without a chaperon. There's the plot. It may not sound funny—but it has been funny for many and many a year.

'Lady Be Good'

First real musical comedy on a local screen recently is "Lady Be Good," starting today at Loew's Grand. I don't know what Hollywood has done to it since it ran a week on the stage of the old Atlanta theater, but it couldn't be wholly spoiled.

Co-starred are Eleanor Powell, a tap dancer; Ann Southern and Robert Young. With Lionel Barrymore and a bunch of others. Story is about a young song-writing team—married. He hits the top and gets the swell head. She leaves him. Old Broadway romance idea.

The music should be especially good. Tunes by Gershwin and Jerome Kern, and Oscar Hammerstein II. And plenty of dancing by Miss Powell.

'Our Wife' Is Held

"Our Wife" at the Rialto, is holding over for a second week, which begins today. So large has been attendance and so enthusiastic the audience reaction Manager Murray decided he couldn't do better than keep his feature attraction for a second seven days.

Melvyn Douglas, Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew have the principal roles in "Our Wife," one of those exceptionally clever romantic comedies which Columbia turns out so well.

It is a lusty and hilarious story. Two women, one the ex-wife who left him when he seemed to be failing, the other the girl who fell in love with him despite his temporary fall from fame, battle for the love of a famous dance orchestra conductor. And how they battle! Hair-pulling is only the start.

One gets the man and the other gets spanked. To find who gets which, you'll have to see the picture for yourself.

Scattergood Baines

Guy Kibbee will again be seen in the role of Scattergood Baines, the sage and wise man of Coldriver in "Scattergood Meets Broadway," which opens a three-day engagement at the Capitol theater, starting today.

This time Scattergood makes a journey to New York, during which the usual sucker greeting is handed out by some of the wise boys of Neon Lane, which is a new way of saying Broadway.

Scattergood is induced to participate in the buying of a show which to the amazement of the bright New York boys who dealt him in, turns out a hit. Many other adventures befall the merchant from Coldriver whose name has become famous on the radio and in books.

On the same program the Capitol offers March of Time's "Peace by Adolph Hitler." Starting next Sunday and running for a week the Capitol is bringing back to the screen "The Prisoner of Zenda," which stars Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

'Dive Bomber'

"Dive Bomber," transferred from the Fox to start today at the Paramount, is not so much a "flying picture" as a study of the fine work of the flight surgeons—who must delve deep into the problems of what happens to pilots at extremely high altitudes. And why—and what to do about it.

Errol Flynn, Fred MacMurray and Ralph Bellamy are the principals, with Alexis Smith as a feminine figure new to the screen. Lee Rogers reviewed the film favorably last week.

'When Ladies Meet'

So popular has been "When Ladies Meet," which ran a week at the Grand and another at the Rhodes, it has been decided to hold it at the Rhodes for another week.

The picture has an exceptionally fine cast—Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson, Herbert Marshall and Spring Byington.

It is a top-hat-and-tails society drama about husbands and wives, based on the Broadway hit by Rachel Crothers.

Armstrong Brings Band Here Tonight

Louis Armstrong, known as "Ol' Satchmo," will bring his band to the city auditorium tonight as the opening feature of the fall season of swing concerts.

A trumpet artist of first note, Louis is given credit for originating the "Wah-Wah" style, the mule trumpet, the use of derby hats and many other methods of tone control.

In addition to Armstrong's vocalizing, persons attending tonight's concert-dance will hear Sonny Woods and Ann Baker, both well-known singers of the band.

A special reserved section has been provided for white spectators.

Farm Security Theme of 3-Day Meeting Here

Approximately 300 Attend Conference, Hear Plea for Defense Food

Farm security as one of the nation's first lines of defense was the theme of discussions at the closing session yesterday of a three-day meeting of Sixth District County and District Farm and Home Supervisors at the Biltmore hotel.

Approximately 300 delegates attending the meeting, presided over by E. C. Young, Georgia's Federal Security Administration director, heard E. S. Morgan, regional director of the FSA, issue an emphatic call for more food for defense after outlining the organization's far-reaching 1941-42 program.

Morgan urged the supervisors in administering the program for the coming year to secure longer leases for FSA families, with improved housing; debts to be adjusted within the ability to pay; use of various co-op facilities and increased production of food and feed crops as a part of the preparedness program.

Other speakers at the meeting included R. L. Vansant, of Montgomery, Ala., associate regional FSA director; Miss Martha McAppline, regional home management supervisor, of Montgomery; and Miss Ruby Thompson, associate Georgia director of home management.

Panel discussions for future group service, farm and home planning and organization of personnel for more effective work were held during the meeting.

A similar meet was held last week in Savannah for south Georgia supervisors.

SCHOOLS OPEN.

MONROE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Opening attendance for the Monroe public schools yesterday was 860 white students, against 883 last year. According to Superintendent H. B. Causey, it was an unusually quiet opening.

Five Per Cent Profit Allowed Mart Builder

Whitley Fee for Market Half Usual Allowance, Says Auditor.

State Auditor R. E. Thrasher Jr. reported yesterday the Whitley Construction Company, of LaGrange, was allowed a 5 per cent profit on expenditures of more than $380,000 in building the new state Farmers' Market in Atlanta.

In an audit of the Department of Agriculture, Thrasher said the construction was awarded to the Whitley concern on a basis of cost plus a fixed fee of 5 per cent. The auditor said his was half the usual allowance for construction work.

The cost of buildings at the market was listed as $220,646 and of grading, drainage and paving at $162,306. Thrasher said the work had been completely paid for, adding that the Governor transferred $38,385 to the department to help defray the cost of the buildings.

On the present basis of collections, Thrasher said, the market will earn more than $100,000 a year and thus offset the cost in a comparatively short time.

Earnings of the seven markets in the state system were reported as $74,203, reflecting an operating loss of $4,587. Revenue collections included $9,673 at Macon, $102 at Pelham, $794 at Thomasville, $284 at Valdosta.

Total income available to the department the last fiscal year was $633,784, including a cash balance of $146,404 at the beginning of the period. Thrasher said the department closed the year with a surplus of $2,765. He also asserted that in the last six months of the year, when Tom Linder was commissioner, operating costs were $61,726 less than in the first six months.

CARMICHAEL TO SPEAK. MONROE, Ga., Sept. 17.—James V. Carmichael, district governor of Georgia Kiwanis, will address the Monroe Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting Thursday night, according to Paul Launus, program chairman.

Barracks Left Spic and Span After Soldier Treasure Hunt

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—There's the germ of a psychological discovery here, some of the Third Battalion boys suspect.

Private Carlisle let it slip that he had found a coin near the barracks. Quickly the soldiers policed the whole area. They even raked the ground.

First Sergeant Boyce was delighted with the spic and span appearance of the place when they finished.

Capitol Bills Nazi, Soviet Action Shots

Newsreel pictures taken by the official German photographer and completed by the Russians are scheduled to be shown at the Capitol theater starting today in the new issue of Pathe News.

These pictures were photographed by German army photographers when the German army started its invasion of Russia and naturally show only the Nazi side of the invasion. The pictures show rapid progress being made, tanks in action, Stuka dive bombers, a pretty picture of Germany taking over Russia on big-scale activities, but . . .

The Russians did an about face, rushed the German advance and captured the German army cameraman, taking the pictures, hence the reason they are now being shown on the Capitol screen, instead of resting in some secret vaults in Germany or being flashed on the screens of German theaters, showing the folks back home how Germany was going to take over Russia.

Lowry's Widow Seeks $1,062 From County

A suit to recover $1,062, unpaid because of what she termed an unauthorized salary reduction by the county commissioners in 1932, was brought against the county treasurer yesterday by Mrs. Jennie C. Lowry, widow of former Sheriff James I. Lowry.

She declared that his salary for 1932 should have been $9,000 and that he drew only $7,937.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey in superior court ordered a hearing for October 3.

Atlantan Dies After Being Hit by Truck

James B. Bridges, 55, of 170 Whitehall street, S. W., died yesterday in Grady hospital of injuries suffered Tuesday when, according to police, he was knocked down by a truck while crossing Mitchell street, near Whitehall street.

His death marked the 27th traffic fatality within city limits since the first of the year, and the first traffic fatality for the month. These figures compare with 22 fatalities last year for the period since January 1, and two for the same month last year.

John W. Rhodes, 25, of a Cooper street address, truck driver, was charged with reckless driving, and will be arraigned in traffic court September 24.

Bridges, a restaurant operator, is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs. A. L. Crooke, Mrs. J. E. Manning, Mrs. A. E. O'Kelly and Mrs. Jean Locke; three sons, W. H., E. A. and J. B. Bridges Jr.; four brothers and one sister.

Youth Unconscious For Two Weeks

A 17-year-old Atlanta youth injured in an automobile crash remained unconscious in Emory University for two weeks, it was disclosed yesterday.

He is Paul H. Nixon, of 410 Euclid terrace, who suffered a fractured skull and a broken collarbone when the car in which he and two other youths were riding September 1 overturned five times and landed in a ditch on Glenwood avenue.

Nixon regained consciousness Sunday. His condition last night was described as critical. His companions were slightly injured. They were Howard Watson, 17, and J. C. Cofield.

104th Session Of Wesleyan Opens in Macon

Bishop Moore Assumes Presidency of Institution.

By DR THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—Wesleyan College, the world's pioneer college for higher education for women, today began its 104th session, with Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of Atlanta, president, and Dr. Silas Johnson, of Macon, vice president.

Bishop Moore estimates that the college enrollment for the year will approximate 500 pupils, including both departments, and day pupils at the two branches of the institution.

Special features attending the new regime at Wesleyan College are found in the employment of 12 new staff members, the creation of two new departments, and the establishment of a chair of fine arts, with an endowment of $50,000.

The closing hour of the opening day for the current session came last night, when the entire student body from the college and conservatory of fine arts assembled, together with hundreds of Macon residents, to hear Bishop Moore's first address to the college as president.

Better Day Seen.
In his address the bishop said a new and better day is dawning for Wesleyan, attested by the upswing of enthusiasm on behalf of the college throughout the entire state, and the support given by the college constituency.

Features of the program over which Dr. Silas Johnson, vice president, presided included musical numbers directed by Dr. Ewing, director of voice culture at the conservatory, and brief addresses by presidents of the four college classes.

The college board of trustees met in a called session, with President T. D. Ellis, of Louisville, presiding. Wm. D. Anderson, of Macon, chairman of the executive committee, announced the establishment of the "Catherine L. Comer Chair of Fine Arts," with an endowment of $50,000 in memory of Mrs. C. L. Comer, who graduated from Wesleyan just 100 years ago. Edward T. Comer, of Macon, is the donor of the fund.

Through the appeal of Miss Annabelle Horn, of Atlanta, now dean of the conservatory, the trustees voted that the degree of B. A. F. should be granted students who complete the course in fine arts. In the future, as further increases to the fund may be made, other chairs will be endowed, it was stated.

Complete accord of Wesleyan College with the Southern Association, the American Council and the Association of American Colleges was announced, so that Wesleyan College is fully accredited in all American college associations.

Committee Named.
Trustees of Wesleyan named a nominating committee of nine members to make nominations for the new board to be elected in October, and which becomes operative when confirmed by the annual conferences. Members of the nominating board are: Lodwick McCord, of Jacksonville; James H. Porter, of Macon; the Rev. George C. Clark, of Valdosta; Dr. Lester Rumble, of Atlanta; Dr. W. H. LaPrade, of Rome; the Rev. Henry H. Jones, of Atlanta; Dr. J. C. Wardlaw, of Atlanta; Wm. D. Anderson, of Macon; Dr. T. D. Ellis, of Louisville, and Bishop Arthur J. Moore. Fifteen additional members of the trustees' board are to be named, it was said.

New staff members in the Wesleyan teaching force are as follows: Dean Katherine Johnson, Dean Annabelle Horn, Dr. Norman Huffman, Dr. Dorothy Culp, Dr. Bailey M. Wade, Dr. J. F. Wilson, Miss Lee Rees, Mrs. Norman Huffman, Miss Isabella Thoburn, Miss Ruth Simpson, Miss Alfred M. Dorman and Miss Betty Hopper.

Two new departments have been added to the courses of study, with courses at the conservatory open to male students. The department of religion and department of education are new with the beginning of this year.

Turner, Scarborough Reported in Atlanta

Atlanta police yesterday received information from Warden Robinson, of the Dallas (Ga.) prison, that Forrest Turner and Slim Scarborough, fugitives from the camp, were in Atlanta. Police broadcast a lookout for the convicts, but they were not found. In the afternoon, police also received word from Chattanooga, Tenn., that two men answering the descriptions of Turner and Scarborough had shortly before held up a business house in that city and escaped with $168.

Georgia Art Exhibit To Be Held at Brenau

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 17.—(P)—The Association of Georgia Artists will give its annual exhibition at Brenau College in November. Mrs. Laura Porter, in charge of graphic arts at Brenau, will also have a display from the Parsons school in New York city about the same time.

Mark Sheridan, of Savannah, is president of the association.

Brooklyn Selectee Is Touchy On Subject of 'Them Dodgers'

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Private Murray Waldenburg, of Brooklyn, arrived here carrying two barracks bags, one labeled "Brooklyn."

When an officer lightly inquired: "What have you got there, son, the remains of the Dodgers' pennant chances?" Waldenburg pleaded:

"Look, mister, I don't know you; you don't know me; call me names; kaypee you can give me for a week and it'll be a pleasure; take away even my passes on holidays, but mister, please—please don't make humorous remarks about them Dodgers!"

Price Named Southeastern President of Shippers' Body To Meet Here

Livestock Program To Be Continued, New Head Says.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Lewis Price, prominent LaGrange banker and civic leader, was elected president of the LaGrange Chamber of Commerce for the next year at the annual banquet of that body last night at the High School auditorium, when approximately 500 citizens of this and surrounding towns met to hear the summary of this year's work.

Plans for the coming year, and the featured speech of the evening by the Rev. Pierce Harris, Atlanta pastor.

Accomplishment of establishing LaGrange as the center of an ever-increasing livestock industry for this section of Georgia and eastern Alabama was cited by V. B. Ingram, retiring president, as the major project of the civic body during the past few years, each year marking an increased interest in the raising of cattle in this area.

In revealing his plans for the chamber for the coming year, Price pledged anew his support in the existing livestock program, the airport improvement, and the further beautification of the city. Price is president of the Citizens' and Southern Bank of LaGrange.

Frank C. Tigner, past president, was master of ceremonies, and the speaker was introduced by Hatton Lovejoy, local attorney.

Orie Manning, 45, War Veteran, Dies

Orie Manning, 45, retired insurance man and veteran of the World War, died yesterday afternoon at the Veterans' hospital, after a long illness. He resided at 1252 Greenwich avenue, S. W.

During the World War, Manning served with the medical unit stationed at Camp Gordon. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. H. B. Manning, and four brothers, Roy, Alton, Henry and Tom Manning.

The funeral will be in charge of Battle Hill Lodge 523, F. & A. M. Complete plans will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

Walton Farmers To Get $134,011 Parity Funds

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MONROE, Ga., Sept. 17.—A total of $134,011.33 in parity payments will come to Walton county farmers this year, according to County Agent H. H. Shores. Of this amount, $64,355.51 has already been received, with additional payments being made daily.

Soil conservation and soil building practice payments, representing a total of $173,003.73, will be made to the farmers participating in the soil conservation program later in the year.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad section of The Constitution.

Group Will Survey Transportation Needs To Expedite Defense.

To survey transportation needs during the next three months in order that national defense may be expedited, 300 members of the Southeast Shippers' Advisory Board will meet at the Ansley hotel today.

With the largest traffic increase in the history of the railroads already being handled swiftly and successfully, the group will discuss ways and means of maintaining "full speed ahead" O. H. Weaver, of Griffin, general chairman of the meeting, announced.

An additional increase of at least 11.4 per cent in carloadings from October 1 to December 31, compared with the same period last year, is indicated, according to a forecast by commodity committees representing every basic industry in the southeast.

Speakers will include Lieutenant Colonel George W. Wannamaker, who will discuss "Chemical Warfare"; H. M. Kendall, of Wilmington, N. C., who will talk on maximum car use; J. T. Hiers, of Wilmington, who will deliver the report of the executive committee; A. W. Vogtle, of Birmingham, president of the National Association of Shippers' Advisory Boards, and H. D. Pollard, Savannah, trustee of the Central of Georgia Railway.

On Ferrying a Bomber to England, Tim Finds Carol Working as a Nurse

INSTALLMENT I.

When Tim Baker landed the Harvard Trainer which he had flown across the Canadian border, he expected to be greeted with friendly smiles and a hearty handshake. But instead, he met a grim-faced wing commander who stood stiffly at attention and rapped: "Mr. Baker, have you ever heard of the neutrality act?"

Tim nodded. "Yes, sir. The papers are full of it."

The commander leaned sternly forward. "Then why did you, an American aviator, deliberately violate it by flying your ship across the border, instead of landing on your side of the line and permitting one of our trucks to pull it across into our country?"

Tim shrugged. "Because I think the act's a lot of hokey! Don't you?"

The commander scowled. "Mr. Baker, I am not here to criticize United States legislation. The act exists, and we intend to observe it."

Tim stepped closer. "Look," he said, "what difference does it make whether I land on our side and you tow the ship across, or I fly it across in the first place? You've got the same ship, haven't you? You're not fooling anyone except yourselves."

The commander straightened stiffly. "We shall not argue the point. Nor will I be a party to any action that might embarrass a friendly government. I'm afraid you will not be allowed to ferry any more aircraft. Good day."

Tim saluted, with a broad grin. "Okay. If you want to keep the war in low gear, there's nothing I can do about it."

Tim was half way through the door when the wing commander cleared his throat. "Just a moment, Mr. Baker." Tim paused, and the commander, looking down at some papers on his desk, spoke casually. "If you should happen to know of any capable pilots, you might mention to them that we are in need of men to ferry bombers across to England. Er—pays rather well, you know. A thousand dollars a flight and all expenses." He smiled. "Of course, Mr. Baker, we wouldn't want our aircraft delivered by way of Berlin on the theory that they are to be employed in that vicinity eventually anyhow."

Tim marched back into the room. "A thousand bucks a flight will keep me right on my course," he grinned boyishly. "England's to the east, isn't it?"

The flight commander stood in front of the group of pilots and navigators gathered before the row of great twin-engined Lockheed lined up on the bleak Newfoundland shore.

The group was a motley lot—adventurers, stunt barnstormers, commercial pilots out for boom-time pay, a couple of ex-army fliers. Their voices rang out in the frosty air; one could easily distinguish a Texas drawl, the hard tang of an Australian, the chunky clipped speech of a Scandinavian. Conversations dealt with tales of flying for the Spanish Loyalists or for Chang Kai-shek, with running guns to South American insurgents and of mapping air routes over mid-African jungles.

The flight commander spoke tersely. "I think you men know what you have to do. I won't add anything, except to point out that your chief danger is that you may fall into some German trap. The Nazis have a habit of passing off their radio signals as ours, to confuse our pilots and make them head for some fake rendezvous. You might also discover that a disguised German plane has joined your group, without being recognized. To try to overcome these possibilities, we have prepared special code numbers, which you are to use when communicating with each other. You'll notice, when you read your number lists, that they are to be changed at stated intervals. This should help you avoid being taken in by a disguised German ship." He smiled. "Let's take them up, shall we?"

Without waiting for answer, he led the men out of their group, to the planes.

Over the grey Atlantic, Tim's co-pilot and the radio operator sat tensely staring at dials. Tim smiled happily at them. "Why worry, boys?" he demanded. "What a life! If I could only fly back home, instead of waiting for a ship, I'd be able to fly one of these over each week. A thousand bucks a week! Even with two weeks' vacation a year, that'd be $50,000 a year!" He slapped his knee. "Boy! What a war!"

In London, Tim looked with distaste at the grey mass of the Hotel Victoria, where he and his co-pilots had been driven after their arrival. "I can sleep all the way home on the boat," he murmured to his co-pilot. "And," he continued enthusiastically, "I think I've found the beam." He smiled and started following a trim, pertly groomed girl down the street. But a second later Tim stopped short, as a young man in high-ranking British army officer's uniform stepped out of a doorway and joined the girl. He grinned wryly at himself, and started walking slowly in the opposite direction.

Half an hour later, Tim decided that he was bored with London. Nothing but greyness, he told

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

Senatorial investigation discovered the gasoline famine was a shortage of surplus.

A shortage of surplus means a fellow's shirttail reached down to his knees instead of his ankles.

There's plenty of it but he is used to more.

Mr. Ickes sure got the wickies over the gasoline drouth. Looked a while like we had to dilute it with soda water.

The unplanned scarcity ended when the railroads bobbed up with 20,000 tank cars that had been filed away under the wrong letter. So the whole gasoline shortage turned out to be a typographical error.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—This will likely be a day of conflicting emotions, when you should avoid petty quarrels, unwise speculations, use care around water and lights and be suspicious of people who want you to go into secret affairs. An excellent day to be careful of your health, especially the digestive tract.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Today is an excellent day to decide just what you want to do. Make more contacts. Revive old ones. Press your pet projects. Be as cordial and expansive as you desire. Make some definite plans for the ensuing year.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Before 12:32 p. m. avoid being hasty or impulsive. Use caution around occupational hazards. From 12:32 p. m. and throughout the remainder of the day be ready to promote changes, put aggressive action behind matters dealing with land, and if you have some long-standing matters that are unfinished, try to complete them now.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable for financial interests, making personal decisions, contacting superiors as well as general business activities. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 4 p. m.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Previous to 3:50 p. m. is a favorable period for communications, studying, and especially auspicious for attending to personal needs.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day, until 1:25 p. m., favors accomplishments of a stable nature. Quick action, creative work, writing, commercial transactions should be highly stimulated to your profit.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Previous to 12:29 p. m. favors financial transactions, industrial and publishing business, dealings in legal and educational affairs. After 12:29 p. m. favors dealings in land or with older people, affairs of art and adornment.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—An excellent day for dealings with matters pertaining to the general public, professional people and politics. Some excellent results should be attained today. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:30 p. m.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 12:31 p. m. use care and economy in any financial undertaking. Between 12:31 p. m. and 7:34 p. m. you will accomplish more by working alone, as others may not get the proper perspective of your ideas. After 7:34 p. m. in favors writing and communications.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Personal affairs and interests of a wider scope may show tendency toward gloom, animosity or you may be inclined to overdo, therefore the day does not especially favor new beginnings. The period past 9 p. m. favors social activities and sports.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The influence predominating previous to 1:51 p. m. are such as may cause you to want to make changes, do things in a hurry and possibly overstep. Impulsiveness in judgment is not to be depended upon now. Better to hold on to what you have and sit steady in the heat. If caution is exercised during the afternoon and evening hours much prosperity can come from transactions started.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Between 1:51 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. much good may be accomplished in routine matters, especially affairs pertaining to the home, property and household interests providing you do not overreach and agree to assume too large a burden. After 7:30 p. m. social activities and matters of a romantic nature.

"LISTEN MY CHILDREN." Alice Frost, of the mellifluous voice, is due to make a series of unusual records for children, narrating favorite stories in albums suitable for youngsters of various ages. First yarn will probably be "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Look for Gloria Swanson and Adolphe Menjou to star in a radio adaptation of their film, "Father Takes a Wife," on a forthcoming "Hollywood Premiere" program.

Service Men Face 'Prof. Q' On Air Today

Frank Morgan Continues Search for Snooks; Bowes on at 8.

By PAUL JONES.

Five service men will be put on the spot tonight during the "Battle of Wits," for they will have a high Q. mark to shoot at. On previous broadcasts soldiers, sailors and marines have averaged 40 per cent higher than the average scored by civilians and tonight 40 Coast Guardsmen will try to make a few "As" on their report card when Professor Quiz presents another of his interesting questions and answers programs.

The program which will be heard over the Columbia network and WGST at 9:15 o'clock will originate from U. S. O. headquarters in New York. This is the first time in five years that an all-male program has been presented.

In a "special statement to the press" Frank (Detective) Morgan has flatly denied charges that he kidnapped Baby Snooks. "Why, Daddy" comedian of the radio who has been mysteriously missing since the program returned to the airwaves for the fall season, and tonight at 7 p. m. over WSB, Morgan will call out the hounds in an effort to track down the missing child. Morgan claims that he has found some tiny fingerprints which might prove valuable in finding the kid, Jockey. I mean John Conte, as well as Daddy Stafford and Meredith Willson will train their interests toward finding the mischievous Snooks.

"Duffy's Tavern" which has collected cowboys and dust since last spring, has been cleaned up for the gala opening of the fall season tonight at 7:30 p. m. over WGST and "Archie," the kindly character of the "Tavern," will be back with more of his humor and nonsense.

Major Bowes will salute Boston, city of narrow streets and wide culture, during the "Amateur Hour" tonight at 8 p. m. A chance at fame will be given a dozen or more "unheard-ofs" during the broadcast.

An old friends dug up an ancient photo of Jack Benny in sailor uniform, taken in 1918 when the funster was a "gob" at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. He compared it with a recent movie still of Jack in "Charley's Aunt," all dolled up in female costume. Hm-m-m! worried Jack. "Guess I look better over the air, when you can only hear me."

Deacon Quits Sunday Mill Job, Then Demands Compensation

Unemployment Referee Here Cites Biblical Teaching for Support of Emergency Work on the Sabbath.

The State Labor Department disclosed yesterday a ruling that a church deacon and Sunday school superintendent who refused to work on Sundays during the recent power emergency because of religious scruples was not entitled to unemployment compensation.

In a decision replete with references to Biblical teachings, an appeals referee of the unemployment compensation division held that in an emergency, "common sense, reason and justice should prevail over Pharisaic ideas of a proper interpretation of the Mosaic law."

The claimant to the job insurance benefit contended that God had set apart for worship and that a Christian could not work on that day, citing the Ten Commandments and the story of creation as his authority.

The claimant, who said he quit his job in a mill rather than work on Sunday, conceded the shortage of power resulting from a drought, but, the referee said, he seemed "afraid that God had withheld the rain in order to test the people to see if they would keep the Sabbath day holy."

He maintained that the Pharisees, who in the first six verses of the 12th chapter of Matthew, complained that Jesus and His disciples were desecrating the Sabbath, were hypocrites.

Reminded of Jesus' questions to His critics in Luke, "Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit and will not straightway pull him out on the Sabbath day?" the referee quoted the claimant as replying:

"Of course, the animals had to have water, but he thought the employer in this case had deliberately put the ox in the ditch in order to get to pull him out."

The referee contended that the Bible showed that if Jesus taught anything with reference to the Sabbath, it was that the "Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."

The mill representatives testified that they did not operate on Sundays ordinarily, but that they had been requested to do so as a power conservation measure during the emergency. Similar requests were made at the time of other mills and business establishments in the state.

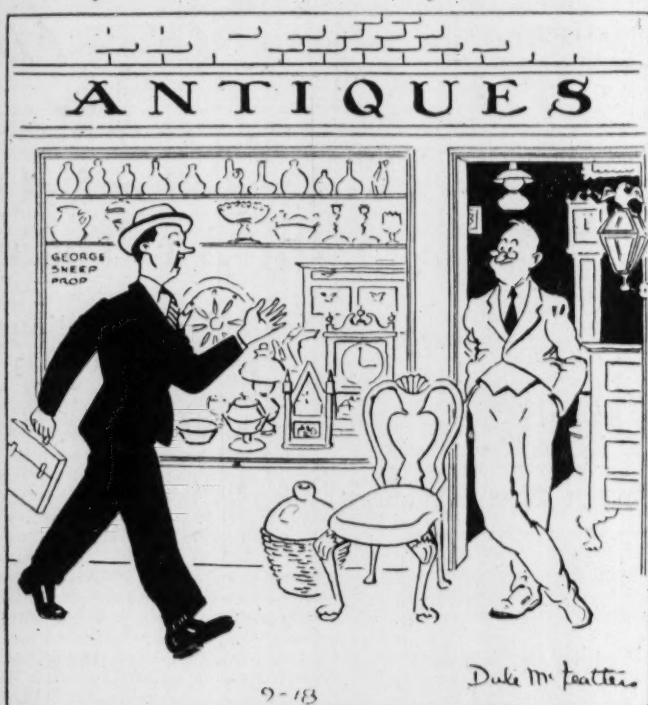

The Labor Department said it was forbidden by law from making public the names of the claimant and the mill.

Wind-Whipped Fires Rage in Maine Woods

SOUTH BERWICK, Maine, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Fires whipped by strong winds raged today in under-dry woods in this sector, threatening buildings in their path and bringing fire departments from as far away as Saco, Maine, nearly 30 miles distant.

For a time last night, it appeared that the Hall Memorial hospital might be menaced, but the spread of the flames was checked about a mile from the institution.

Nonstrikers Restore Power To Kansas City

Service Returned Before Many Knew of Shutdown.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Electrical energy flowed normally through the distribution facilities of the Kansas City Power and Light Company last night after a strike of AFL workers had darkened the city, disrupted trolley and electric bus service and threatened the water supply during four early morning hours.

The city went black at the stroke of midnight when, without warning, AFL electrical workers threw the power company's master switches. However, a sufficient force of nonstriking employees restored service before the majority of the sleeping populace was aware of the shutdown.

The strike caught the city off guard inasmuch as the AFL union had dropped an original plan to strike on September 7 pending consideration of the case, involving a question of jurisdiction, by the Defense Mediation Board in Washington. On Tuesday, however, the Mediation Board held that the dispute was one for the National Labor Board and the courts to settle, and soon thereafter the walkout was called.

Six Arrested.

The AFL union, which represented 350 production employees in collective bargaining, had demanded that it also represent 200 other workers. The company contended that the latter were members of the Independent Union of Utility Employees with which it had entered into a contract.

Before the day was over, state and federal authorities had joined in a demand that the strikers go back to work, six men had been arrested, and Governor Forrest C. Donnell had ordered a battalion of home guards to stand by for possible call.

Meanwhile, strikes continued to curtail the digging of soft coal in the captive mines of Pennsylvania, Virginia and Kentucky and in a number of hard coal collieries of eastern Pennsylvania.

A conference in Washington, looking toward resumption of operations in the captive pits, broke up without reaching a decision.

County police, investigating, declared he had apparently walked a considerable distance and sat down upon the railroad tracks to rest.

Robert Strickland will address the first fall meeting of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at Rich's Tea Room on the subject, "Not the War—Problems Nearer Home."

DeKalb County Dairymen's Co-operative Marketing Association announced a sale of fresh cows and springers at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the livestock area of the Southwest DeKalb school at Panthersville.

Colonel Irvine F. Belser, of the Civilian Defense Corps, will be principal speaker at the first fall meeting of the Georgia Woman's Democratic Club at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Ansley hotel. Mrs. Fannie Mae Dabney, president, announced yesterday. He will speak on civilian defense. Mrs. T. M. Suttles will render vocal selections, accompanied by Mrs. Andrew S. Marshall. A board meeting will precede the club gathering.

Mitchell family's reunion will be held Sunday at Lithia Springs with a basket dinner and all-day outing.

Labor Relations Body Reorganized

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP) President Roosevelt today completed reorganization of the Labor Relations Board by nominating Gerard D. Reilly, of Massachusetts, as a member to succeed Edwin S. Smith, also of that state, who failed of reappointment when his term expired recently.

Reilly, a native of Boston, has been solicitor of the labor department since August, 1937. If confirmed by the senate, he will be the youngest member of the board which has been a storm center of debate in and out of congress for several years. He will be 35 on September 27. His appointment is for five years from August 27.

CITY COURT JURORS.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—A special term of city court will be held here beginning September 29, for which a list of traverse jurors was released today by John A. Carley, clerk. This term of court is called for the trial of usury cases. The grand jury recently returned 76 indictments against alleged violators of the usury laws.

GEARED TO SERVE THE SOUTH

SYMBOLIC of Southern Bell's tremendous importance to the vital communication system of the South is its Seal—an emblem of proven service to industry and the public and now to defense. The national emergency is making unprecedented demands upon every resource at our disposal in men, women, materials and money. Recruits are daily swelling the ranks of our trained army of workers.

Our reserves of basic equipment are being taxed to the utmost to keep pace with the ever growing demands for more and more telephone service. The more than 51,000,000 dollars required this year for constructing, reconstructing and adapting telephone facilities to meet government and other telephone needs is being willingly invested to insure the expansion and protection of telephone service throughout the nine southeastern states we serve—Southern Bell is geared to serve the South.

Ecclesiastical Flower Show To Be Staged on October 3

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • • • COMING AS A DECIDED innovation in the realm of cultural autumn events is the first Ecclesiastical Flower Show to be staged on October 3 in Holy Trinity parish house in Decatur. Altar Guild members of all the Episcopal churches will enter the altar arrangement class and the use of accessories is discouraged because of not seeming appropriate. It must be remembered that the sermon is the focal point and floral arrangements and music form the accessories. Dignity will be the keynote of this very original class, and the arrangements should serve to uplift the emotions by appealing to the eye.

To those interested in making floral arrangements to be placed on tables and in niches in churches there will be three classes exhibited in the flower show. In the first, foliage may be used with fruits or berries; in the second, twin arrangements will be featured with flowers and foliage, and a single arrangement of any natural or dried flowers or fruits will be displayed in the third class.

Every Sunday during several months past, church arrangements have been demonstrated in Holy Trinity church. Some talented parishioners were always called upon to arrange the flowers, foliage or berries on the altar, and from this movement was born the first Ecclesiastical Flower Show, which has as its chairman none other than the experienced Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown.

Mrs. Charles Holden is president of the Altar Guild of Holy Trinity church, of which her husband, Rev. Charles Holden, is the beloved rector. The news travels fast in these modern times and when the well-known lecturer, Mrs. V. U. Welles, heard about the show, she wrote Mrs. Crown she would journey here from her home in Norfolk, Va., to attend the horticultural event. The small admission fee will be charged for admittance from 2 to 9 o'clock on October 3.

Mrs. Long Attends National Meeting

Mrs. Robert A. Long, president of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, left Sunday for Chicago to attend a meeting of the national board of managers.

Today Mrs. Long will speak at a conference of state presidents, using as her subject, "Relationship of the States to the District, Council and Local."

The board of managers of the Georgia Congress will meet in Macon September 24 and 25.

In Mrs. Long's message to members of the Georgia Congress she states: "It will be our task to re-emphasize our own parent-teacher objectives, so that all phases of child welfare will have a greatly increased impetus. Health programs, parent education, nutrition, citizenship training, recreation, juvenile protection and many others should be a part of our planning."

"There is real need for us to evaluate most carefully any activity which might lead us away from our own objectives. The demands will be many, and probably worthy. Our own task will tax our resources, and we shall do well 'to hew very closely to the line' of our own platform adopted by the national congress at its convention in Boston."

"We can find no finer cause to serve than the needs of our children and youth. It is a pleasure to welcome all our new leaders into this year of work together."

Mrs. Ashurst Appoints Pilot Club Chairmen

The Pilot Club of Atlanta met recently at the Ansley hotel and Mrs. Readie P. Ashurst, the president, announced the appointment of Miss Gladys Boulton and Miss Julia Mashburn as chairmen of the absentee and educational committees, replacing Mrs. Lee Wallace and Mrs. Agnes Baker, who resigned.

The life and health committee, Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, chairman, proposed that the club establish a milk depot so that milk could be provided undernourished children in one of the first grades of the public schools and this plan will be inaugurated at once. The social welfare committee will sponsor a marionette show for the amusement of patients at Battle Hill sanatorium, the date to be announced later.

The civic committee reported that the city-wide "Prayer for Peace" movement, sponsored by this committee, will be launched on Monday and that it has the endorsement of the Christian Council of Atlanta and the city administration.

The next meeting of the club will be in charge of Miss Myrtle Morton, the chairman, on September 23, held at the Atlanta Woman's Club at 6:30 o'clock.

Miss Loretta Kehoe Weds W. A. Perryman Jr. at Church

The Peachtree Christian church formed the setting Tuesday evening for the marriage of Miss Loretta Kehoe and William Andrew Perryman Jr., which was solemnized at 8 o'clock by Dr. Robert W. Burns. Mrs. Victor B. Clark, organist, and Miss Mildred Hamilton, vocalist, presented the music.

Palms and other foliage plants formed the background for the altar decorations, which featured floor baskets filled with white gladioli and cathedral candelabra holding lighted white tapers. The family pews were marked by clusters of white chrysanthemums.

Kenneth M. Perryman was his brother's best man and the ushers included Homer Moore Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn.; R. T. Tillman, of Eufaula, Ala.; Walter W. Neil, Jay Lindsey and Wesley Trimpi.

Miss Alma Kehoe was her sister's maid of honor and wore a gown of gold satin and carried a bouquet of sun-glow roses and salmon-pink cactus dahlias.

The bridesmaids included Miss Jane Kehoe, Mrs. Homer Moore Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., sisters of the bride; Miss Frances Perryman, Mrs. R. T. Tillman, of Eufaula, Ala., and Mrs. Walter W. Neil, all sisters of the groom. They wore blue satin gowns and carried bouquets of golden rapture roses and pink cactus dahlias.

The lovely young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, R. E. Kehoe, wore an exquisite gown featuring a bodice of white lace and a full net skirt posed over satin. The deep yoke was embroidered with seed pearls. Her veil, extending from a coronet of orange blossoms, was showered with matching flowers. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom, and she carried a shoulder bouquet of orchids, bride's roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Alma Goode Kehoe, mother of the bride, wore a costume of blackberry wine crepe and her flowers were sun-glow roses and tuberoses. Mrs. William Andrew Perryman Sr., mother of the groom, wore a model of Molyneux blue crepe and a shoulder spray of sun-glow roses and tuberoses.

Following the ceremony a small reception for the bridal party, families and close friends was held at the Wineoff hotel. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of bride's roses and white gladioli.

Later in the evening the couple left for a wedding trip to Miami, Fla., the bride traveling in a brown crepe ensemble with brown accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids. Upon their return they will reside at 1345 West Peachtree street.

Miller-Little Rites Take Place Sept. 20.

HELEN, Ga., Sept. 17.—Miss Anna Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Miller, of Helen, has chosen September 20 as the date of her marriage to Dr. Samuel Little, of Atlanta and Ann Arbor, Mich. The wedding will take place in the late afternoon at the home of the bride's parents with only the families and close friends attending.

The attractive bride-elect is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller and attended Anderson Junior College and was graduated from Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in 1939. She is a talented musician, and studied voice and piano, and received her degree in the department of music.

Miss Miller on her maternal side is the granddaughter of the late Frederick Edwin Hilbish and Mary Jane Moyer Hilbish, of Freesburg, Pa. Her paternal grandparents are the late George E. Miller and Isabella Dreese Miller, of Snyder county, Pennsylvania. Lieutenant George Frederick Miller, of Lynchburg, Va., is her only brother.

Dr. Little received his early education in the Atlanta public schools and was graduated from Emory University School of Medicine in 1939. While attending Emory he was a member of the Theta Kappa Psi medical fraternity. Since his graduation Dr. Little has been interned at University hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., where he is resident in neurology.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Little and is a descendant of prominent Morris-Boynton.

Of interest is the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Frances Victoria Morris and Gaines Lloyd Boynton, whose marriage will be an event of September 20 at 4 o'clock at the College Park Christian church. Rev. M. L. Marling will officiate.

A musical program will be presented by Mrs. Hugh Durant and Miss Elizabeth Mann, as vocalist. The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Early Morris. Mrs. James Reeves will be matron of honor and only attendant.

Best man will be Clay Kitchens. Ushers are Young Longino, Dudley Lambert Jr., James Reeves and Charles Steele.

Among those entertaining for the bridal couple are Mesdames George Abercrombie Jr., Mrs. Roger Hardegree, Mrs. James Reeves, Mrs. Myles Jones, Mrs. J. D. McElroy, Mrs. E. W. Milleans and others.

Miss Morris was honored at luncheon recently by business associates at the Henry Grady hotel.

Miss Theo Hoskins and Miss Claire Mixon complimented Miss Morris and Mr. Boynton at an alfresco party at North Fulton park.

pioneer families. His maternal grandparents are the late John Adam Clements and Lou Jackson Suttle Clements, of North Carolina and South Carolina. His paternal grandparents are the late Rev. Samuel Boyd Little and Ann Judson Reeves Little, of South Carolina and Georgia.

Mrs. Neal Owens, of New Orleans, and Mrs. Neal Morgan, of Heflin, Ala., are sisters of the groom-elect.

Miss Gladdie Beggs, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Beggs, will become the bride of Moreland F. Moncrief at a ceremony to be solemnized October 11 at the Peachtree Christian church.

Miss Sara Jarvis Will Be Honored

Additional social affairs are announced today for Miss Sara Jarvis, who will marry Lieutenant Hal S. Dumas Jr. next Wednesday at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

On Friday Mrs. Ronald Eaton will fete Miss Jarvis at a tea at East Lake Country Club at 5 o'clock.

Covers will be laid for Mesdames C. E. Jarvis Jr., Hal S. Dumas, Paul Lindsay, W. A. Dozier, Keith Conway, and Misses Laura Belle and Jane Jarvis. Andy Dumas, Emily Sale and Katherine McKie.

Next Monday Mrs. E. W. Gottenstrater will compliment Miss Jarvis at a luncheon at East Lake Country Club.

Guests will include Mesdames C. E. Jarvis Jr., Hal S. Dumas, C. Aycock Jr., John McClelland, Cotton Mather, Paul Lindsay Jr., and Misses Emily Sale and Andy Dumas.

Yesterday Miss Jarvis was honored at two parties, the first having been the luncheon given by Mrs. James C. Moore at her home on Emma lane.

Last evening Miss Jarvis and Lieutenant Dumas were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lindsay Jr. at a bridge party at their home on St. Augustine place.

Invited were Mr. and Mrs. John McClelland, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Bagley, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Aycock Jr., Buddy Jarvis, and Misses Jane Jarvis, Emily Sale and Andy Dumas.

Mrs. Charles Stair and her daughter, Mrs. Marvin Mitchell, were co-hostesses recently at a beautiful autumnal luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club for Miss Jarvis and Mrs. James E. Warren Jr., the former Miss Louisa Stephens, of Forsyth.

Luncheon was served in the gold room of the club and the table was beautifully decorated with colorful fall flowers arranged in an artistic plateau arrangement. On either side of the centerpiece were silver candelabra holding bronze tapers. Covers were placed for 20 guests.

Dr. Heiser Maintains That Unbalanced Meals Cause Most Overweight

By Ida Jean Kain.

Women can do more than anyone else to toughen up America, Dr. Victor Heiser told me in a recent interview. They can make the biggest contribution because they can see to it that the food they serve their families contains all the essential elements for abundant health.

The famous doctor said: "The nation which applies the science of nutrition to the greatest number of its people will be the most powerful in the world." And he thinks there is no question but that the housewife will play the leading role in the practical application of the newer knowledge of nutrition.

The way Dr. Heiser explains it, there's no need to wrinkle your brow or to wear down your pencil figuring the exact proportions of calories, protein, vitamins and minerals that are needed. Foods naturally divide themselves into two classes—the tissue builders for protection and the fuel foods for energy.

The first group are called protective because they keep our bodies renewed, stabilize the nerves, and ward off old age. By now you should be quite familiar with the foods that perform these miracles: Fruits, vegetables, milk, cheese, butter and eggs, whole grains, lean meats and fish. All that's necessary is to see that these foods are included every day in the menu. So that life-giving elements will not be thrown away, precautions must be taken to cook the vegetables quickly in a small amount of water, and this water must be used. Otherwise, both vitamins and minerals may be lost.

He is strong in his belief that the amounts of sugars and starches in the average person's diet should be decreased. He thinks we eat too much. "Most people like to eat as much as they can without gaining too much weight. What they should do is try to eat as little as possible without losing weight." That applies, of course, to those who are normal weight.

Dr. Heiser is among the authorities who believe that overweight is largely due to unbalanced meals. When a person fills up on lots of starch and sugar and does not get the requisite minerals and vitamins, nature can indicate your needs only by making you hungry. But if you keep right on eating more of the fuel foods rather than the protective foods, you do not assuage this hidden hunger—you are still hungry for the missing elements.

He says, frankly, that he has never known a fat person who did not eat too much, and that the glands may be thrown out of kilter by the long-continued excess intake. A lessened food intake would give the glands less work to do and would normalize them.

In his latest book, "Toughen Up, America," Dr. Heiser tells exactly how to go about making your family healthier and happier.

Points for Parents

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

"Father: 'I told you why you must not throw your ball into the street. Now we will have to put it away for the rest of the day because you did not mind.'"

"Father: 'I'm going to teach him to mind me if I never teach him anything else. Then I won't have any trouble with him when he is older.'"

A certain amount of obedience is necessary when dealing with young children, but it should never be considered as a goal.

Beautiful old jewelry holds a fascination for us all, and the intricate charm of many pieces is most flattering to modern styles of dress. Sarah Simpson wears a set of pendant and earrings which was created by a French craftsman for a famous French personage, long ago. Real emeralds are surrounded by pearls and diamonds in a wreath-like gold setting. In her hand Miss Simpson holds an antique pin-locet. The back has a space for a picture; the front is decorated with a golden bird poised before a golden bird's nest filled with real pearl eggs. The set and pin are part of a collection of rare and antique jewelry pieces being shown here in Atlanta by their famous collector. Included are selections of museum piece impressiveness, as well as smaller, more moderately priced gems. Call Winifred Ware at WA. 6565 to find where you can see and buy these pieces.

Home Town Turns Out to Welcome Louella Parsons and Ronald Reagan

By Louella O. Parsons.

DIXON, Ill., Sept. 17.—(INS)—Great luck to find Dr. A. J. Cronin, author of "Keys of the Kingdom" on our train. Dr. Cronin had just had a conference with David O. Selznick who is producing the doctor's best seller. Damine O. Flynn, who was so good in "Anna Christie" in the Santa Barbara stage show which David produced, plays the priest; Ingrid Bergman the nun, and an effort will be made to get Burgess Meredith to play Dr. Tolluck, the athletic medical man.

While I was talking to Dr. Cronin a telegram came saying that David definitely would make the movie. I was interested to see Cronin with his novel, "Keys of the Kingdom" marking off the passages that might be considered controversial and considered out of place by the Catholic church. "We have consulted many Catholic dignitaries and will cut out anything that might be construed as offensive," Dr. Cronin said. "I like this book better than anything I have ever done and it will thrill me to see it on the screen." Dr. Cronin is a Catholic and his wife a convert.

I suppose my homecoming to Dixon is something that all of us have dreamed about and hoped might come true some day. I'm still pinching myself to see if it's all real and it is Ronald Reagan, the local boy who made good in a big way. In a town of 10,000—20,000 met the train with a band and the state militia and representative of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion. Mayor Bill Slothover presented the key to the town to me. I went to school with Bill and I was so near to tears that I was glad I could smile at his dignity. From a slim, mischievous school boy he has become the town dignitary. Bill met every train as the guests arrived on the job as was Mrs. Mabel Shaw, publisher of the Dixon Daily Telegraph. What a thrill to be met by members of the class in which I graduated and our hostess, Mrs. Charles Walgren, who is entertaining us at her estate in Hazelwood.

"Beautiful but dumb" is a lost phrase, so far as our youngsters of today in the movies are concerned. I met Ray with his bright speeches in radio interviews, both in Salt Lake City and Ogden. Her impromptu speeches were a model of what is appropriate. George Montgomery too spoke easily and as for Ronald Reagan he was always one of the best impromptu talkers in the movies. An up and coming young man, Wilby Durham, of the Salt Lake Desert News, met the train and rode as far as Ogden. He said the previews held in Salt Lake City brought his town closer to Hollywood. His paper believes in movies and my column has a spot on his page.

CHATTER IN DIXON: The one and only Bob Hope, Jerry Colonna and George Montgomery are riots in my home town! These three got off the train, grabbed bicycles from the local boys and rode through the town—and did the kids love it; when Joe E. Brown arrived he was led with due solemnity to a house in a tree and was told that this was where he was to live. "Bringing the nut back to tree" cracked Joe. I must say the fans certainly love Joe E. When he drove to the station to meet Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, the 20,000 persons were still waiting. Bebe and Ben were led to the "Mike" by Mayor Bill Slothover and what a cheer they received.

Wires from Hollywood collected at every stop and in Dixon: If the baskets of roses and the ruby victory pin Louis Hayward had waiting for Ida Lupino in New York means anything—discount those rumors of trouble between these two. . . . Rene Riano, who plays the nurse with Laird Cregar in the Los Angeles stage revival of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," is the big boy's new big moment. . . . Russell Hayden and Jane Clayton, supposedly matrimonially estranged, holding hands three nights in a row at Charlie Foy's. . . . Arline Judge will take a fling on the New York stage in a show titled "Daylight Savings" when she finishes her stint with Mons. Rosenbloom in "Harvard Here I Come." . . . The Basil Rathbones took their adopted youngster to the ice follies over the weekend. . . . Frank Fay hobnobbing around on a train at the Brown Derby. . . .

Raves for Gene Raymond's work in "Smilin' Through." Watch for the big breaks he's long deserved come Gene's way now. . . . Elaine Barrie holding hands these evenings with Ed Wiggan. . . . Don't know whether it means anything

Girl Will Lose Very Little By Giving a Frank Apology

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:

I am 17 and very much in love with a boy who lives 20 miles from my home. I began going with him four months ago. I learned from a friend that this boy was married. I asked my friend and he said it was true but that he was not living with his wife. I knew Mother and Dad would not approve so I told my friend not to come with him any more. Since then my beau has been to see me just three times but he always writes. I asked why he stopped coming and he told me he had no one to bring him. I love him so much. Mother and Dad want me to marry some one of my own standing. Must I try to go with him any more? How can I get him to come back? Was I right or wrong to tell him not to come with the married man? I can never love anyone else.

WORRIED. Since you were not dating the married man, I think you made a mistake in telling your beau to stop calling. After all, he was using the man as a means of transportation. Since it is the boy whom you want to see and not his "chauffeur," I would not consider whom he manages to get to bring him, except for being polite and pleasant to him. Write and tell him that you made a mistake in asking him to stop coming, but ask him to come again. Of course Mother and Dad want you to marry some one of your own standing, and I think if you are so much in love with this boy, you had better do a little investigating. Until you have parental objection, go on with him.

AVOIDING A SCENE IS WORTH INCONVENIENCE Dear Dixie:

We have just moved to Georgia. It is necessary for either me or my son to go daily to the home of my husband's boss, and at times we are treated very rudely. Do you think we should be respected? I keep my children and my home clean. If I have to go to her house, and she has company, she just ignores me and has not the manners to introduce me to her friends. I cannot ignore the situation all the time. It is getting under my skin.

ALMOST DISGUSTED. There is common courtesy regardless of one's station in life, and as you did not state the reason for your visits to the home, it is rather hard to offer any solution to the problem. The only advice I could give you, is that you try to make some arrangement whereby neither you nor your son will have to make these calls. Everyone should be respected, and just because she is rude it is no reason for you to be. The best thing to do, is to stop going to the home, so that you will not have to accept any more of her insults. Better stop now, rather than have to make a scene.

FRIENDLINESS PAVES WAY FOR RECONCILIATION Dear Dixie:

I am in love with a boy six years older than myself. I am 16. We went together about seven months, but we have quit now. I have seen him with other girls, but he did not know it. I do not go with other boys because when he sees me talking to them it makes him mad. He is always nice to me when we see each other, and he always comes to speak to me. Since we stopped going together, he has started drinking. I think he still loves me. Do you think he still loves me? What can I do? How can I find out?

LOVE CRAZY. If the breakup was not very serious, why not try for a reconciliation? If you still like him and he seems to want to be friends again, encourage him a bit. Don't take it so seriously if he talks to the other girls. It is natural. And do not think you are the cause of his drinking. If he is still interested in you, he will respond to your encouragement. If he does not, get yourself another friend.

STICK TO YOUR HUSBAND. Dear Puzzeled in Griffin, Ga.:

Go back to your husband and forget about the other man. If possible stop the divorce proceedings and try to make your husband happy. I do not think the other man loved you. Your whole letter points to that and even if he did, he would not have changed. He was taking you too much for granted and you were acting foolishly. Forget him.

Even Clean Teeth Need Dental Care

By Dr. William Brady.

People who give any thought at all to the science of health, beyond the childish fancy that fresh air, pure food and keeping the bowels open will keep one well enough, generally are aware that neglected decay of teeth, inflammation in gums or infection or "silent" abscess about the roots of the teeth is a menace to health. But even though they are aware of that, many still elect to gamble with health, or perhaps they imagine they can get along all right without treatment by the dentist if they brush their teeth regularly and thoroughly with the right dentifrice. The false slogan that "a clean tooth never decays" contributes toward this foolish course. Then, besides, there are other factors, sometimes the inconvenience of interrupting work, play or recreation to go to the dentist when there is no emergency such as toothache; sometimes the fear of pain—this, too, is childish in view of the skill of the modern dentist in analgesia.

Repeatedly I have given here what I believe is the consensus of opinion in the medical profession in regard to the focal infection principle, and I have expressed in candid terms my own opinion of the application of that principle in practice, as it is described by beneficiaries or victims. Briefly: I would not sacrifice a tooth on mere X-ray evidence, not unless my dentist and my physician conferred and agreed that extraction of the tooth might reasonably eradicate or drain the specific septic focus responsible for my rheumatism or whatever the systemic trouble might be.

If I am unsatisfactory to critics in my teachings about that, probably they will derive little consolation from the spirit of my teachings on the prevention of decay of the teeth and degeneration of the gums. If more people took care of their teeth in this country, more of the intelligentsia, I mean, the wiseacres who imagine they can preserve their teeth just by brushing them religiously, there would be a tremendous slump in the business of the dental quacks. Of course there would be more work for the honest dentist, vastly increased numbers of patients reporting regularly for inspection, scaling, cleaning or whatever minor treatment might be required to keep the teeth in perfect functional condition. This, however, would be the finest investment the patient could possibly make—an ounce of prevention that is cheap at any price.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Adhesions. Are they serious? How can one be cured of them? MRS. W. W. Answer—Sticking together or union of surfaces normally separate, by scar tissue following wounds (accidental or operative), inflammation or infection. Whether adhesions are beneficial or a cause of trouble depends on their situation and other circumstances.

Cri. Last winter, by following your advice, taking small daily doses of quinine, the five members of our family escaped having the attacks of cri we have invariably had during other winters. This is one of many practical benefits we have derived from your teachings.

L. F. Answer—Glad to mail on request, if you enclose stamped envelope bearing your address, a pamphlet "Quinine in Modern Medicine." Inclose 25 cents if you want also booklet "Call It Cri!"—dealing with the common respiratory infections, catarrh, sinusitis, bronchitis, tonsils, adenoids, etc.

Lead In Hair Dye. Would there be danger of getting lead poisoning from using a hair dye containing sugar of lead? (G. H.)

Answer: A few cases of chronic lead poisoning have been ascribed to use of lead in hair dye. Personally I do not hesitate to dye my hair with such dye if necessary to hold my job, for instance. I'd keep my hair well oiled, to prevent dry dandruff—it is by inhalation of minute particles of dry dandruff that lead might get into the body.

Today's Charm Tip

For the Wife: Let your good man tell his story his own way. Women who insist upon "taking over" when a mate introduces a theme are pretty generally resented.

MY DAY: Retailers Anticipate Post-War Needs

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Yesterday noon I went to buy a stamp at the exhibition which opened "Retailers for Defense Week." This effort on the part of retailers to do a real job for defense is a very wise move. While it may curtail some of the buying at the present time, it will put money in people's pockets for future use. We shall need that money to keep us from too great a business slump during the transition from defense work to normal activities.

It seems to me that in everything we do today we should have an eye to our present needs, but at the same time think far enough ahead to guard against some of the difficulties we have undergone in the past.

For instance, if the production of automobiles is going to be drastically curtailed in order that industry may take a bigger share in defense work, why not plan to put money, which in ordinary times we might set aside for a new automobile, into defense stamps, and call those stamps "our automobile fund" for the future?

We may have to use our old car a bit longer than we would ordinarily think wise, or even economically sound, but at least we can arrange our own finances so that they are helpful to the government at present and useful to us when the day comes for buying that new car.

Women are as interested in all the business questions as men. During the week of October 5 to 11, which will be observed as Business and Professional Women's Week throughout the nation, there will be special emphasis on the plans laid by which women, many of whom are influential in business and professional groups, can aid the defense program.

I wish they would all think not only of the problems which come before them in business, but also of the many local problems which, in the end, are going to be very vital in national defense. A particularly vital problem is participation of volunteers in work where their efforts will be valuable.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

Napoleon started it. He demanded meats which would keep unspoiled on the march. And for more than a century the aim in canning meats was to preserve keeping qualities. But Wilson & Co. considered it equally important to preserve flavor, too. So they developed "Lasting Flavour" products—the aristocrats of all canned meats—often far more delicious than the same choice meat cooked at home.

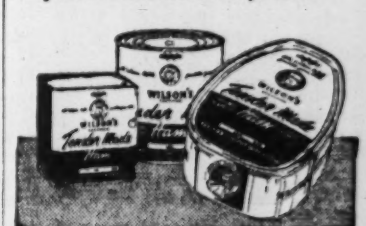

This "Lasting Flavour" process brings you meat with all its nourishment, proteins, minerals, and vitamin B—all its rich flavor and juices sealed in.

Miss Lentz and Mr. Slicer Announce Bridal Personnel

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 17. Enlisting sincere interest in the announcement made today by Miss Margaret Osterlander Lentz, of this city, and Joseph Samuel Slicer Jr., of Atlanta, of the plans for their forthcoming marriage.

The ceremony will be solemnized on Tuesday, September 23, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Lentz, on Nebraska avenue here. Dr. Charles T. Warner, of St. Alban's church, will read the marriage service in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends of the prominent young couple. Miss Virginia Roberts will present a musical program.

Mr. Lentz will give his lovely young daughter in marriage. Miss

Lentz will be attended by her sisters, Miss Mary Augusta Lentz and Miss Betsy Lentz. Harry Slicer, of Atlanta, will serve as best man for his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Lentz will entertain at a reception at their home following the ceremony. Assisting in entertaining will be Misses Marguerite Mattoon, Ellen Anderson, Margaret Hedges and Katherine Marsh.

During the evening Mr. Slicer and his bride will depart for a wedding trip to Eaglesmere, Pa., at the conclusion of which they will reside at Charlotte, N. C.

Atlanta who will attend the ceremony are the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slicer, and his brother, Harry Slicer.

Satin and Lace Form Bridal Gown For Miss Gaines

Handsome white satin combined with dainty lace to form the exquisite gown worn last evening by Miss Esther Gaines, daughter of M. A. Gaines and the late Mrs. Bessie Crow Gaines, when she became the bride of I. J. Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bailey.

The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock by Dr. Louis D. Newton at the Baptist Tabernacle. Miss Mildred Russell, soloist, and Mrs. Ione Wood, organist, presented a musical program. Palms formed a background for the cathedral candelabra, which held lighted white tapers, and Grecian urns filled with white flowers.

Serving as ushers were Robert C. Irwin, E. H. Lummus Jr., M. O. Byrd, and Peyton Turner. Acting as best man for Mr. Bailey was his brother, C. H. Bailey Jr.

Miss Madge Moore, the maid of honor, wore a costume fashioned of pale blue satin styled with snug-fitting bodice and leg of mutton sleeves. She wore a bandeau formed of velvet flowers in the same shade as her gown and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers in pastel colors tied with pink satin ribbon. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bride.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. R. H. Lummus Jr., and Miss Frances Stubbs, wore pink satin gowns fashioned like Miss Moore's and their bouquets were like hers. They wore pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Horace B. Snelling gave his sister in marriage. Her gown of white satin featured a sweetheart neckline edged with lace, similar lace forming gores, which extended from the neckline to the end of the long train. Her veil of illusion tulle was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. She wore a strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of swainsons and tuberoses centered with white orchids.

The bride's sister wore a moss green crepe gown accented by gold clips and a matching hat. Her flowers were talisman roses.

The groom's mother wore a black gown trimmed with white and offset by a black hat and shoulder cluster of gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left for a wedding trip through Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina and spending several days at Gatlinburg. Mrs. Bailey wore for traveling a victory blue wool crepe suit accented by matching hat and other accessories. A cluster of orchids graced her shoulder.

Upon their return to the city they will reside at 1072 High Point drive, N. E.

Among out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Bailey, Miss Malissa Bailey, all of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bailey, of Macon.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY L. SOLOMONSON JR.

Miss Lichten Becomes Bride Of Henry L. Solomonson Jr.

The beautiful empire room of the Biltmore hotel formed the setting last evening for the marriage of Miss Helen Elaine Lichten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lichten, and Henry L. Solomonson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Solomonson.

Rabbi David Marx officiated at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple. A musical program was presented on the organ by James Beers, accompanied by Miss Anastasia Marinos, soloist.

An aisle was formed by standards topped with cathedral candles, and the improvised altar was banked with palms, ferns and seven-branched cathedral candelabra. On each side of the center decoration were Grecian urns filled with white gladioli and lilies.

Ushers were Julius Oelsner, Paul Rosenzweig, Malcolm Sherman and Max Weis Jr., of Memphis, Tenn. The groomsmen were Leo J. Lichten, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Louis Rosen, of Tampa, Fla., sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and was gowned in ice-blue satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a net overskirt. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and yellow dahlias tied with yellow satin ribbons. Miss Jean Bailey, as the maid of honor, wore a gown fashioned like that worn by the matron of honor. Her flowers were similar.

The bride entered with her father, Leo F. Lichten, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and Dr. Louis Rosen, of Tampa, who was the best man. She was beautifully gowned in old ivory slipper satin, made on princess lines with a sweetheart neckline. Her only ornament was a necklace of pearls, the gift of the groom's parents. Her beautiful veil belongs to Mrs. Kurt Holland and Mrs. Morton Nathan. She carried an heirloom handkerchief of duchess lace, the gift of her paternal great aunt, Miss Florence Lechman, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Her flowers were white roses and white swainsons arranged in a shower bouquet and tied with white velvet ribbons.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Lichten, the bride's parents, entertained at a reception at the Biltmore terrace. Quantities of white flowers combined with greenery were used as the decorations. The bride's cake, standing 40 inches high, was made in the form of a castle and featured portraits of the bride and groom in colored icing.

Mrs. Lichten, the bride's mother, was gowned in ciel blue crepe trimmed in gold embroidery and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Solomonson, the groom's mother, wore a model of lime jersey with purple orchids.

Assisting in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Solomonson, parents of the groom; Mrs. Nat Klausman and Mrs. Herbert Konstanz, who kept the bride's book.

Mr. Solomonson and his bride left for a wedding trip to California and will go later to Bremerton, Wash., where they will reside. The bride traveled in a Florentine blue costume suit trimmed in London dyed squirrel and worn with brown accessories. Her only ornament was an heirloom pin, which belonged to her late grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Lichten, of Pensacola.

Out-of-town guests were Miss

Keller's Fate Will Be Known At Friday Exam

Cast Will Be Taken Off Injured Leg of Yankee Outfielder.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Although Charley Keller still is confident he'll be in right field for the New York Yankees in the World Series, Dr. Robert Emmet Walsh, who handles the club's casualties said today no one will know anything about it until Friday.

On that day, the physician said, he'll take the cast off Clouting Charley's ankle and will advise Yankee Manager Joe McCarthy just what the Maryland player's chances are of getting into the series.

Keller went on the injury list last week with a chip-fracture on the inside of the right ankle, a torn ligament on the outside of the same leg and a painful charley-horse in his left leg. At that time, Dr. Walsh said Keller was hurt badly enough to prevent his playing in the series, but today he said there would be nothing definite until the cast is removed to determine how far along the ankle has come.

Keller, meantime, pooh-poohs any idea that his big bat won't be in the series starting October 1. He figures that with enough tape to support the ankle, he'll be able to navigate around the bases as well as at the plate.

Norrie Re-elected P. G. A. President

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17.—George Norrie, of the Savannah Golf Club, was re-elected president of the Southeastern Professional Golfers' Association at the annual business meeting here.

Thad Holt Given Auditorium Post

Appointment of Thad Holt, Atlanta newspaperman, as promotion and publicity director for the municipal auditorium, was announced yesterday by Burt Wellborn, manager.

Wellborn said that Holt's experience in the field will be utilized to bring outstanding sports, theatrical and musical entertainment to Atlanta.

Holt has been a member of The Constitution sports staff for six years, and will continue in that capacity.

Superbly Trained Parachutists Box at Lakewood Friday Night

Is a parachutist tough? Answer: yes indeed! If he wasn't, he wouldn't be a parachutist.

These men are so thoroughly trained that when they drift out of the sky they must be able to cope with overwhelming odds, often in lands strange to them, facing an enemy which might outnumber them by 50 or more to one.

A parachutist first of all must be an athlete. He must have unlimited endurance and courage. He must be an expert at physical combat, proficient at using fists as well as his gun. Atlanta boxers meet Fort Benning's famed Parachute Battalion fighters at Lakewood Park Friday night at 8:30. They wisely are aware of the skill and power of the invading forces and are determined to make a creditable stand.

This will be the final show of the season, and quite evidently the biggest. All grandstand seats will be sold for 20 cents, with ringside going for 50 cents.

Medals will be presented winners of the City Varsity tournament which has been in progress all summer at Lakewood.

TO MEET SOLDIER—One of the Atlanta boys who will oppose Fort Benning's famed Parachute Battalion in the ring at Lakewood Park Friday night will be Harry Broadnax (above), topnotch lightweight. This will be the biggest and last show of the season.

Pull for Dallas There'll always be a Shaughnessy system and if the playoffs can continue to produce the kind of games Atlanta and Nashville are playing it will be highly desirable. Never has there been a series like this one in the Southern League.

Both Managers Larry Gilbert and Paul Richards are pulling for Dallas to win in the Texas League. Gilbert recalls that in 1926, when New Orleans and Dallas played, there was a $29,000 gate for one game. Times have changed, but Dallas remains a fine baseball town.

Manager Richards would consider going to Dallas in the nature of a home-coming. Waxahachie, his home town, is just around the corner, so to speak.

Richards could get over there and walk around the square and the odds are that some native, sitting on the curb, would draw, in case of wet weather, "What's the matter, son, too wet to plow?" That happened the last time we visited Waxahachie. This native had missed Richards but had no idea he was managing a baseball team in Atlanta, Ga.

Amateur Ties Southeastern Pros for Lead

By AL SHARP,

Constitution Golf Writer.

PONTE VEDRA, Fla., Sept. 17. Dick Doeschler, 19-year-old Jacksonville golfer, proved his mettle against some of the south's finest professionals here this afternoon as he opened with a 2-over-par 74 in the annual Southeastern P. G. A. tournament and tied for first place.

The youngster, from whom you should hear more when he starts firing as a sophomore on the University of North Carolina team, had 37-37 to deadlock with Al Nelson, home course pro, and Ed Brook, Bartow professional.

ATRIDGE NEXT.

Clyde Atridge, Pensacola pro, had a 75 for next place on the first lap of the annual tourney, which calls for 18 holes tomorrow and 36 on Friday.

At 76 were Joe Burch, of Mobile, and Jake Fonden, of Memphis. Tied with Louis Broward, Jacksonville amateur, at 77 was Gene Cook, Anniston pro. John Cochran, former Rome, Ga., player and defending champion from Greenwood, Miss., scored a 78. Tied with him were Leland Crews, of Brunswick; John Teal, Jacksonville amateur; Charlie Danner, Nashville pro, and George Norrie, Savannah pro.

Charles Miller, Macon pro, had an 80, and Hoke Cooley, Griffin pro, could not handle the wind and tough layout as he tallied an 82, which included a 10 on the par 5 third hole.

In the playoff for the pro-amateur title, for which four teams tied yesterday, Fred Haas Sr., New Orleans pro, and John Teal, Jacksonville amateur, scored at a par 4 on the first hole to take first place.

COOLEY-DINKLER.

Second place in this event went to Pro Hoke Cooley, Griffin, and Carling Dinkler Jr., of Atlanta, who won from Gene Cook, Anniston, and Doeschler on the sixth hole with a birdie 4.

Dinkler saved the day on the second hole by sinking a long putt to halve Doeschler's birdie. He also got down another long one to keep the team in the match.

Press Net Event Starts Saturday

The annual press tennis tournament will get under way here Saturday. Invited to participate in the matches are The Constitution, Journal, United Press, Associated Press and the International News Service.

The entrance fee is 75 cents. New balls will be furnished the players for each match. The matches can be played on any court agreeable to opponents. The finals are set for Sunday, September 28. Prizes will be given to finalists and semi-finalists.

Players can pay their entrance fee to Roy Fuss, Linton Hopkins or Frank Gilreath, Room 501, Journal building.

L.S.U., Clemson Figure To Gain Easy Victories

Coaches Return to Old System of Playing Easy Openers.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

The first big week of scheduled football games for the 1941 season indicates that many coaches have returned to the old system of starting off with "breathers."

In recent years it had become the vogue to start the season with a bang against tough opponents. Only a few coaches this season had the temerity to follow that early rough and tumble kickoff. Big-name teams that should have push-overs this weekend include North Dakota, Boston College, Clemson, Duquesne, Florida, North Carolina, L. S. U., Texas Tech and Virginia.

It'll be a battle of the Bulldogs when Gonzaga and Arizona State of Tempe clash this weekend at Spokane, Wash. Both have that nickname. The Williamson System picks Gonzaga.

Texas A. & I. will try for a repeat victory over San Jose State in another jolting opener affair. The system favors the Texans.

Santa Barbara State will be fortunate to beat Pomona College in another Friday game.

On Saturday night, Davidson—by playing at home—may just have the edge over Rollins. Marshall College, with its star back, Jackie Hunt, returning, will have to play good football to win over the 1941 dark-horse Omaha University's squad.

Richmond to win over North Carolina State may surprise some of the dopesters. Not us.

Furman supporters have hopes of surprising a somewhat let-down bunch of Tennessee Volunteers. But the system will ride with the Vols.

Creighton has no snap assignment to conquer St. Benedict's on Sunday.

Some of the games scheduled here may not be played at all. It also will be noted that the system has omitted the preliminary rating after each team in this week's prediction schedule. That's due to the revisions necessitated by the unusually heavy early September "casualties"—the draft, war jobs, academic washouts, injuries, and failure of stars to report.

Leading games scheduled this week through Sunday, Sept. 21:

Teachers Study At Stephens Camp

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Work Projects Administration teachers of Georgia assembled at near-by Camp Alexander Stephens this week to plan their work for the coming term.

Actually, the teachers are going to school themselves at the camp conference, enrolled in courses in government, philosophy of education, teaching methods and nutrition.

Georgia WPA Administrator Harry Harman Jr., said drastic curtailment of WPA rolls required careful planning to meet teaching service needs. During the past year, average enrollment was about 25,000 students.

The WPA teachers instruct in classes which include the basic adult education for adults, first aid, homemaking, canning, Americanization of aliens, Spanish for military aviation cadets.

LaGrange Sale Of Livestock Breaks Record

Feeder Calves Bring More Than $16,000 at Auction.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Topping all monthly sales since the first livestock sale was held in April, 1938, Tuesday's feeder calf sale at the Bacon street stockyards brought a total of $16,552.24. With Joe L. Young, local auctioneer, chanting from 10 a. m. until after 6 p. m., 512 head of cattle were sold, 39 hogs and a few goats and sheep. Buyers from Columbus, Atlanta, Albany, Opelika, LaFayette and Roanoke, in Alabama, and other cities, crowded into the stands to bid for the Troup-county-raised livestock.

This was the largest sale ever held in the local yards, including the annual spring fat cattle sale, with the exception of the last one which was held this spring, when a total of $24,144 was realized. The 1940 feeder calf sale totaled only $13,317.55, a difference of $3,234.55.

Joe K. Hawkins, county agent, expressed satisfaction at the volume of business and the quality of calves sold. Many young farmers in Troup county, beginning their programs of operation, are becoming interested in the production of livestock as a major source of revenue.

Notice is hereby given that at the meeting of the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta, at the City Hall in said City at 2:00 o'clock P. M. on the 15th day of September, 1941, an Ordinance was introduced and read providing for the construction of a sewer along and in Westmore Drive, from the street to end of street and outfall.

The General Character, material and size of said sewer are as follows: 8" clay or concrete pipe with 6" house connection. Brick manholes with cast-iron manhole tops and steps. Said sewer to be built at an estimated cost of $939.00. Said Ordinance for the construction of said sewer may be adopted at the meeting of the Mayor and General Council of said City of Atlanta to be held on the 15th day of October, 1941, at 2:00 o'clock P. M. in the Council Chamber or at any subsequent meeting of said Mayor and General Council.

Said sewer is to be built in accordance with the Act amending the Charter of said City, assessing One Dollar and Fifty Cents per linear foot upon the property and estates respectively abutting said sewer, on each side of said sewer. Given under my hand and seal this 16th day of September, 1941. J. L. RICHARDSON, Clerk of Council.

Notice is hereby given that at the meeting of the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta, at the City Hall in said City at 2:00 o'clock P. M. on the 15th day of September, 1941, an Ordinance was introduced and read providing for the construction of a sewer along and in Meade Street, from near South Boulevard to Green Avenue, and for the replacement of said old sidewalk with concrete sidewalks, the cost of which shall be assessed against the abutting property owners as provided by the Charter and Ordinances of the City of Atlanta.

At said meeting of the General Council, those persons desiring to be heard in connection with the proposed Ordinance will be given the privilege. Following said hearing the Mayor and General Council will then take up the passage of said Ordinance replacing said old sidewalk with new concrete sidewalk, the cost of which shall be assessed against the abutting property owners as provided by the Charter and Ordinances of the City of Atlanta, on this 15th day of September, 1941. J. L. RICHARDSON, Clerk of Council.

Gin Accident Fatal To Social Circle Man

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MONROE, Ga., Sept. 17.—Prince Collier, 54, died today from injuries received when he was crushed in a cotton gin press at the J. Henry Stephens ginney in Social Circle. It is said some cotton became entangled in the top of the press and Collier reached his arm in to remove it, when his foot hit the lever throwing the press into gear and pulled his body into the press. He lived about 30 minutes.

He was a World War veteran and had been a citizen of Social Circle for 30 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lizzie McGee Collier; sister, Mrs. Victoria O'Dyer, of Texas.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon in the Social Circle Methodist church, the Rev. John King and the Rev. J. O. Brand officiating. Interment will be in the Social Circle cemetery.
